CONNING TOWER STAFF

This is a new decade. The Seventies will belong to the youth of today, and will be marked by events and fads (not necessarily all beneficial) as the Sixties were marked by "Death in Dallas", "Beatlemania", "Thalidomide", "Tiger in your tank", "Expo", "Trudeauboppers", and "The Moonwalk".

The young adults of today will prove that they are capable of making good use of the privileges of modern life and that they will make this country a more wonderful place for all to live.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

These are difficult times in which to grow up. The pace of living is frantic. The mass media bombard you constantly from many sides, urging you on the one hand, to complete your education, but on the other hand, enticing you to escape into a carefree dreamland of Utopia, where sun-tanned men in top physical condition drive about in brightly coloured topless cars loaded with gorgeous girls. How difficult it is to balance reality with fantasy. But reality is living, and living is what we all must do.

Where does Weston Collegiate Institute fit into this pattern? Ideally the school must prepare students to live as responsible individuals, capable of achieving their maximum potential in a society where change has become a way of life. In September 1970 our school will move into a new building. A building with facilities designed to meet the needs and challenges of education both now and for some time in the future.

We have made a small beginning to meet this challenge. Individual timetabling with subject promotion is a modest start. You have been given the freedom of choosing your program in the light of your plans following your graduation from Secondary School. But very much implied in this freedom is the responsibility of selecting your courses carefully. Free time is available to all of you. Free time can be wasted or it can be used to advantage. Responsibility once again is placed on you to make your commitment to your own education.

The facilities of our building will enhance this new approach; two large group instruction rooms, facilities for group seminars, a large centrally located library resource centre, and a swimming pool, are examples of some of these features. These are facilities only; meaningless, unless employed for a purpose. That purpose is your education. Let us go forward then as a team, we the staff and you, the students, ready to commit ourselves to the preparation for living.

W. H. Hill

Mrs. Hanna Wright

Mrs. Hanna Wright, a former teacher at Weston, was definitely, a woman of many talents. She loved art and her home was decorated with many of her own paintings. She could speak both French and German and held Elementary Certificates in both Physical Education and Guidance Counselling. She was an active member of the local University Women's Club. She was appointed to the staff of Weston Collegiate in September of 1957 and later on she was going to have to get used to teaching her only son, who now attends St. Andrew's College.

It was a sad day when we found out about Mrs. Wright's accident but she most definitely lives on in our memories.

PEACE MAKER 1969

“Blessed are the Peace Makers for they shall be called the Sons of God”.

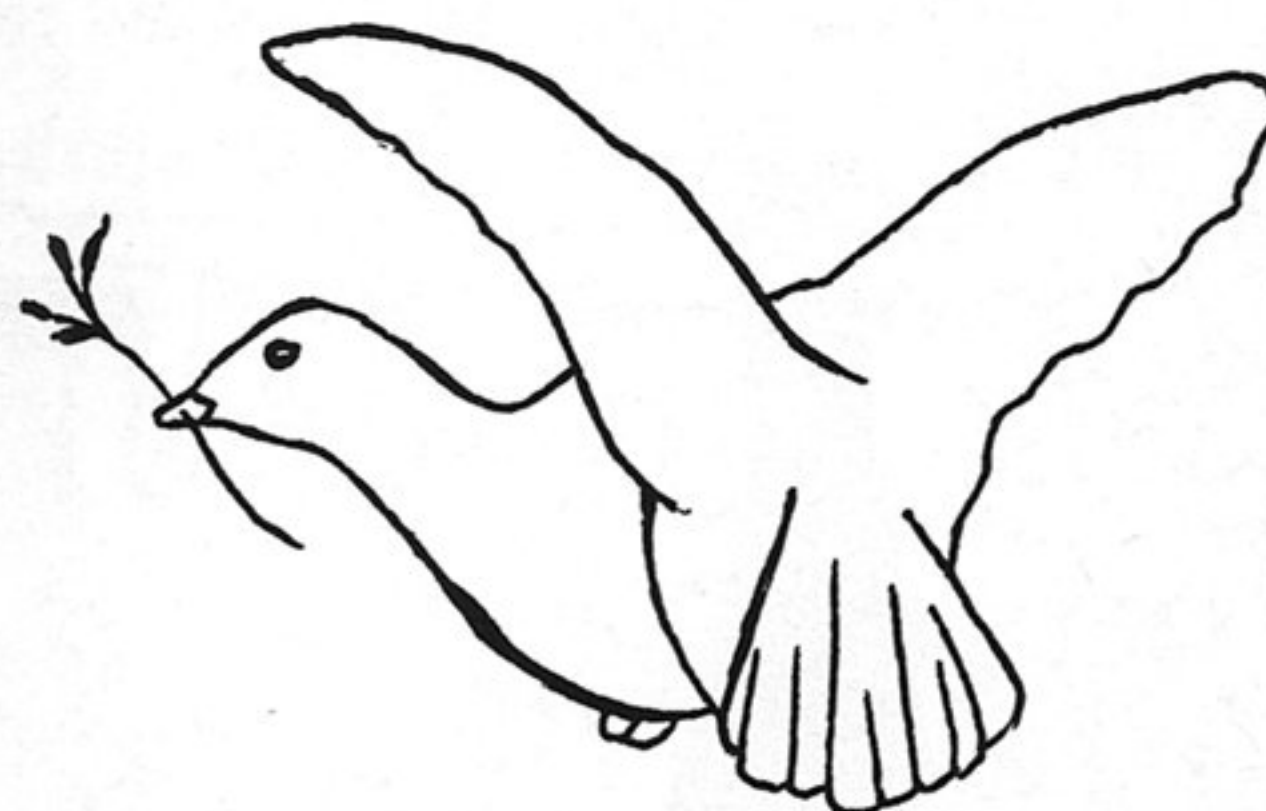

This was the theme for our Remembrance Day on Monday, November 10, 1969, as the students of W.C.I. assembled together in the auditorium to attend services in memory of the servicemen who fought and died in the wars since 1914. The service opened with a hymn. The scripture lesson was read by Wayne Dobson and the Lord's Prayer was said. A talk was then given by Mr. Hill entitled “Peace Maker 1969.”

What an incredible amount of time, money, and blood has been offered on the altars of the gods of wars. What has it really cost us to lose so many lives in the wars of this century? How many might have become poets, writers, or creative thinkers? Who were artists? Who could have become statesmen to lead the world in days like these? Think of the broken marriages, the twisted lives of children, which could have been built if we had not been so busy destroying life and property!

Peace Makers may sometimes look like trouble makers because they may be struggling to avert a build-up of hatred and ill will by removing injustices in our society. For injustice, if not dealt with effectively, will produce violence.

The Last Post was played. There was a minute of silence, followed by “Reveille” and the playing of “O Canada.”

STUDENT COUNCIL — 1969 EXECUTIVE.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

During my term of office as President of the Student Council, I have seen great successes and failures throughout the year. Without the help of our staff advisors, Mr. Cole and Mr. Pardy, and the rest of the Student Council, I, as President would not have been able to function. Our failures were turned into successes mainly because of you, the students who always came through in our drives and enabled us to reach our goals. I would like to thank all the staff for their cooperation, especially Mr. Hill, Mr. Heard, and Mr. Fullerton for I felt there was a greater liaison between the students and the staff. Also a "thank you" to the secretaries for their cooperation and help. Finally to those of you staying at Weston, keep up the school spirit; and to those of you graduating, good luck in the future and keep the faith and the peace.

Wayne Dobson

SCHOOL DAZE

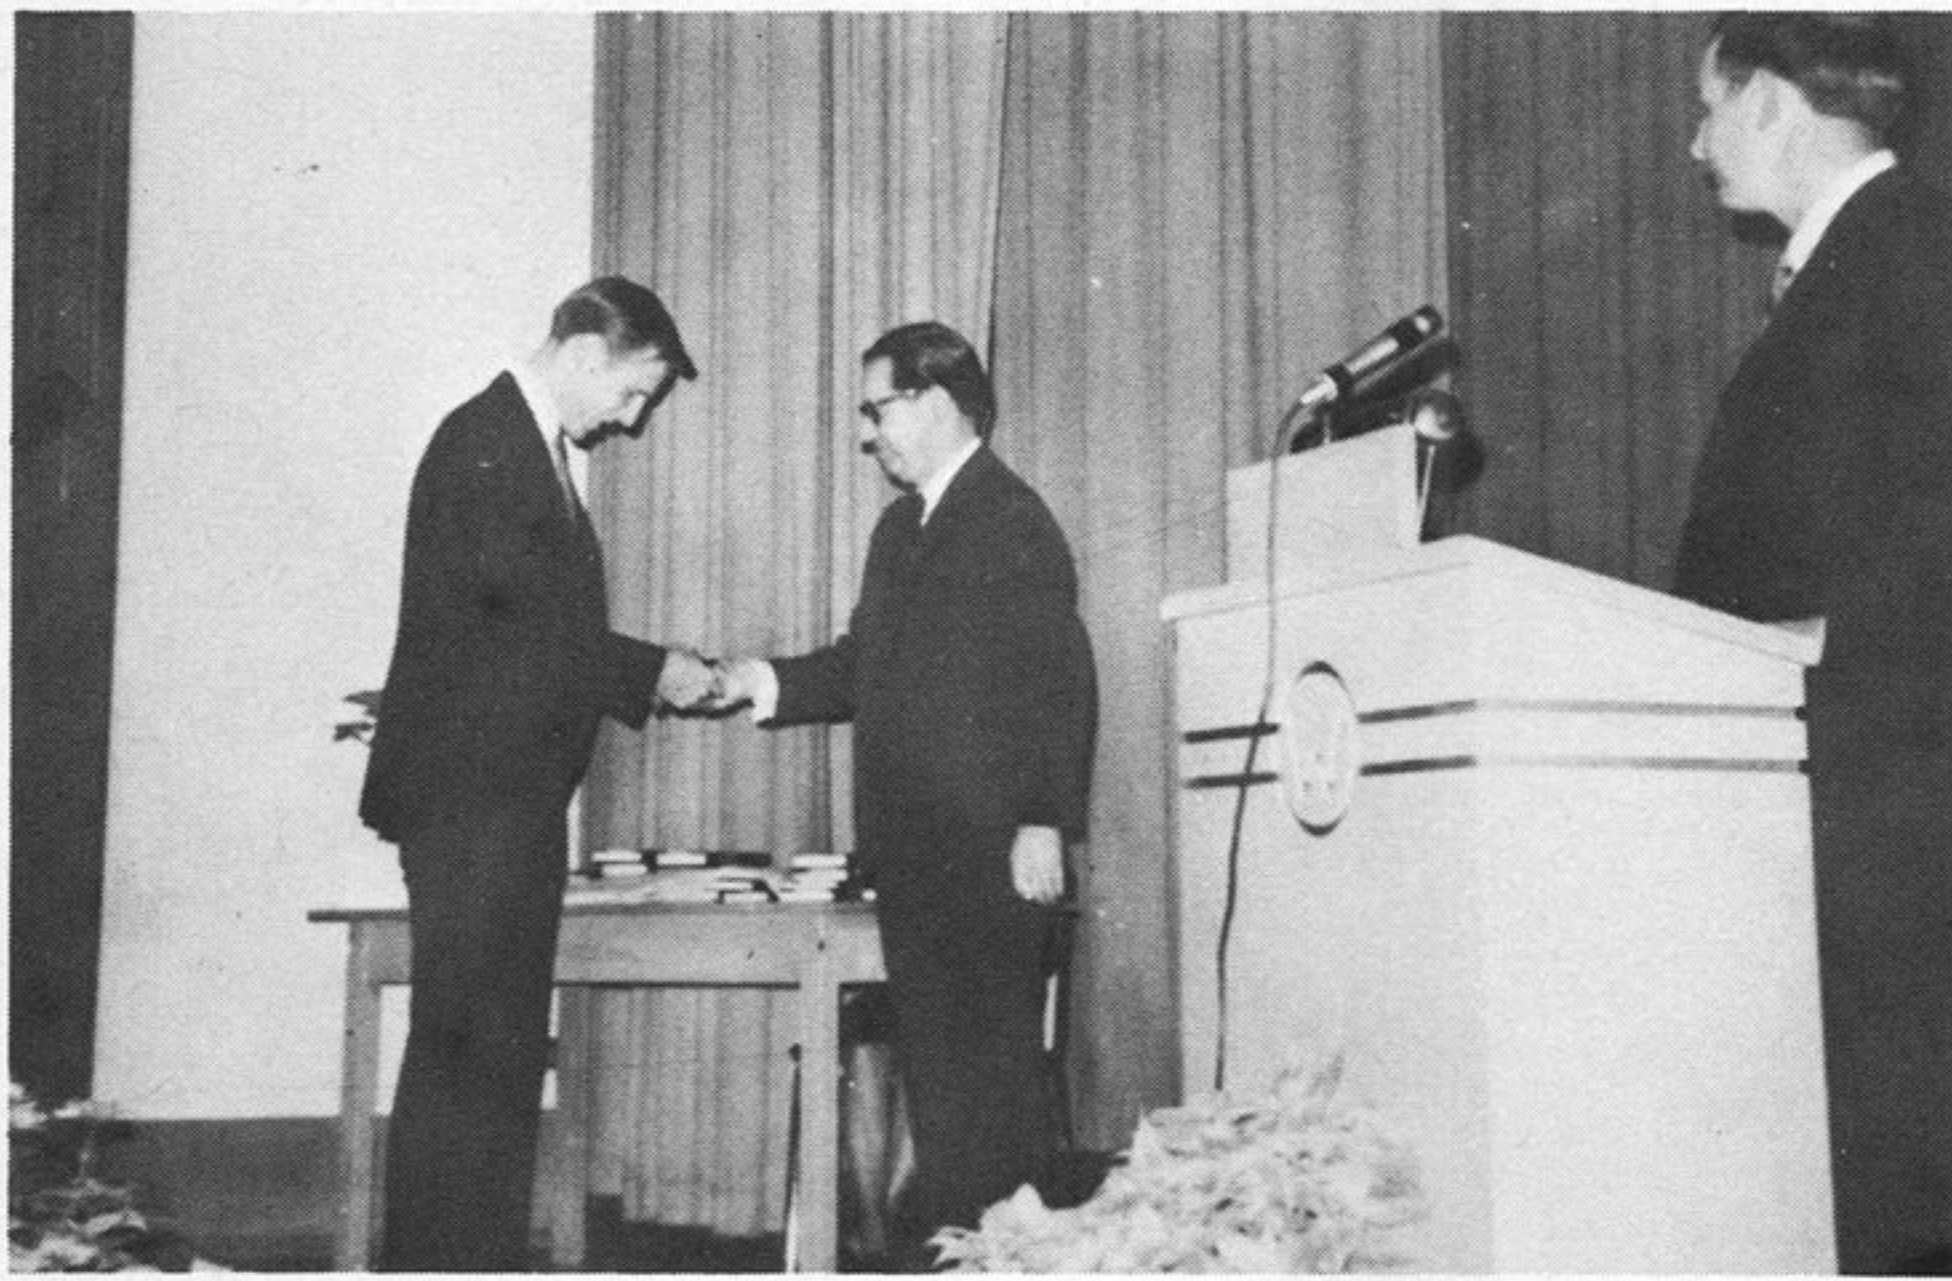

If I had known Physics was like this.

"Instant Insanity" strikes again!

Commencement for the 1969 graduates was held on Friday, October 24, 1969. It was an evening of honoring those who had distinguished themselves, of congratulating those who returned, and even those who hadn't. The valedictory address, presented by Juwal Krausz, was the highlight of the evening; a rather unusual speech which omitted the usual reminiscing and instead questioned the existing educational system. Under the direction of Mr. George Garlin, the school orchestra delivered a fine performance to round out the evening. The graduates left with their diplomas in hand, and mixed emotions in their hearts. They now begin the lifelong test of their knowledge.

THE GHOSTS GO EAST

W.C.I. is not disappearing. Only a building of brick, steel, cement and wood will go; the initials and the spirit remain to move east.

The building was not unimportant: the school's physical growth can be measured in the evolution of its buildings. The first class, about twenty boys, who filed into the Methodist Church on August 10th, 1857, to begin Weston Grammar School, were able to move to Weston's first Secondary School building in March 1858. This two story building at the corner of Elm and King streets, included the schoolroom — dominated by the teacher's desk and a stove — and rooms for the teacher's family and pupil boarders. On March 25, 1875, the Thursday before the Easter weekend, the building was destroyed by fire. By January of 1876 the pupils were able, again, to move out of the church headquarters into a new building on the same site and of almost the same design.

From 1907 on, many people said that there must be a new high school. Those who were pushing to have the village proclaimed a Town, and those who were proud of the improving scholarship at the small school were among those who said, afford it or not, Weston had to have a new secondary school. Behind the scenes a site was chosen — a big strawberry patch belonging to Edward Eagle on William Street. Wallace Cruickshank, Chairman of the School Board, took an option on the property — for two dollars!! Ultimately Mr. George Sainsbury was given the building contract, the work was begun in June 1912, the cornerstone laid on September 27, and the school opened in the fine new building the following September 1913.

In September 1921, the Adolescent Act brought a flood of teenagers to fill the classrooms and overflow into the basement and to the new public school two blocks away. There had to be an addition to the 1913 core. Due to the efforts of one board member, Dr. E.F. Burton, a teacher of commercial subjects was appointed and plans to build a Vocational School addition were prepared. Between 1922 and 1925 the school, as many Weston people remember it, was built. To the 1913 core, four additional rooms were added to the south; a corridor, the vocational school, and a gymnasium-auditorium complex along Macdonald Street to complete the project. In 1925, four more rooms to the west and six to the Vocational School created a Weston High School that ranked third largest in Ontario outside of Toronto, the fifth in scientific equipment, and the only composite school in York County.

In spite of continuous population growth and expanded educational demands, the next additions were long delayed by the Depression, World War II, Atlantic Pact Military Plans, and the Korean War. However, by 1950, attendance figures of 1200 made further delay ridiculous. In September a whole new wing on William Street gave W.C.V.S. a full-sized gymnasium, auditorium, cafeteria, and new classrooms, releasing room for a library and efficient office space. A nurses' room, football field, and an expanded corridor completed the major change — and in the process College Street was lost. By the 1960's, classrooms on the corridors, a much enlarged library, and more property did little to stop the mushrooming portables.

In September 1970, all those buildings will begin to disappear to be replaced by the very modern piece of architecture which looms over Pine Street.

The initials W.C.I. carry with them the ghosts of all the changes from the Weston Grammar School of 1857 to 1871. A new Education Act which substituted high schools for grammar schools changed W.G.S. to W.H.S. until it became W.H.V.S. when the Vocational School was added. In 1939 its size and pride demanded collegiate status. W.C.V.S. it remained until a new sense of integration and a new connotation for the words "vocational school" changed the initials to W.C.I. in September 1965 . . . the initials which go east in September 1970.

But much more than the buildings which disappear or rise and the initials that change is the spirit that goes east. W.C.I. takes with it a proud heritage of sportsmanship, cooperation, sacrifice, loyalty, and scholarship.

Bob Grosskurth, editor of the 1939 Conning Tower, said, "No longer is the secondary school an institution where one goes with the sole purpose of mastering those subjects presented by the Department of Education . . . there are scores of extracurricular activities". Scores may have been exaggerating, but it was in the activities that the qualities of which Weston is proud were exhibited.

Cooperation and sacrifice are two more qualities that must go eastward with the school. Think of the innumerable hours that members of the School Board have given to making changes possible. One name in Weston — Cruichshank — will have to represent all those unnamed members who gave years of service even over more than one generation. Remember the parents who sacrificed to keep children at school. Such principals as George Wallace, Alex Pearson, Ernie Worden, and Wes. Christie gave unstintingly of their time and thought to make Weston a school of which its graduates could be proud. Behind every Scholarship, every good job won, every happy citizen, every extracurricular activity was some teacher who was willing to sacrifice. And in every club and activity there were students willing to give, understanding that you only get from an institution what you put into it. No appeal was ever neglected — United Appeal, Korean Orphans, victims of Hurricane Hazel, the needy at Christmas — always the quota was topped.

Extracurricular activities, no matter how important and exciting, were never allowed to obscure the traditions of scholarship. University Scholarships, including the Prince of Wales, were won from the very outset of the century, and since the inauguration of Provincial scholarships, Weston has held its head high with its winners. Weston is very fortunate, too, in the large number of individual and industrial scholarships awarded to a great variety of students. Each Commencement, pride in our past is reawakened with the presentation of the traditional prizes.

May the spirit of the white W. . . . compounded of scholarship, ambition, civic-mindedness, cooperation, loyalty, tradition, and pride. . . . carry east to the new buildings whatever changes may come in the future.

The second high school in Weston, on King Street west of Elm, in use from 1875 — 1913. The original building erected on the same site in 1858 was destroyed by fire in 1874. No picture of the original school can be found.

1857 - FAMOUS GRADUATES - 1970

Some notes on "Famous Grads" they sought —
I gave the subject considerable thought.

Consulting friends, I soon listed sixty;
(Could have found one hundred and fifty!)

Which shall I choose, and which reject?
Shall I be accused of utter neglect

If inadvertently I omit one
Whose claim to fame is excelled by none?

"Ambassador, industrial designer, dramatist —
Several names could appear on that list

"Curator, doctor, geologist —
Many there might be missed.

"Technical director, judge, journalist —
On their inclusion I insist.

"Educator, minister, scientist —
I could go on, but must desist,

Though there are engineers and vets, by the score,
Presidents and secretaries — and many more.

How compress them all within a page,
Yet include the illustrious of every age?

Shall I leave her in or take him out?
Suppose someone somewhere raises a shout!

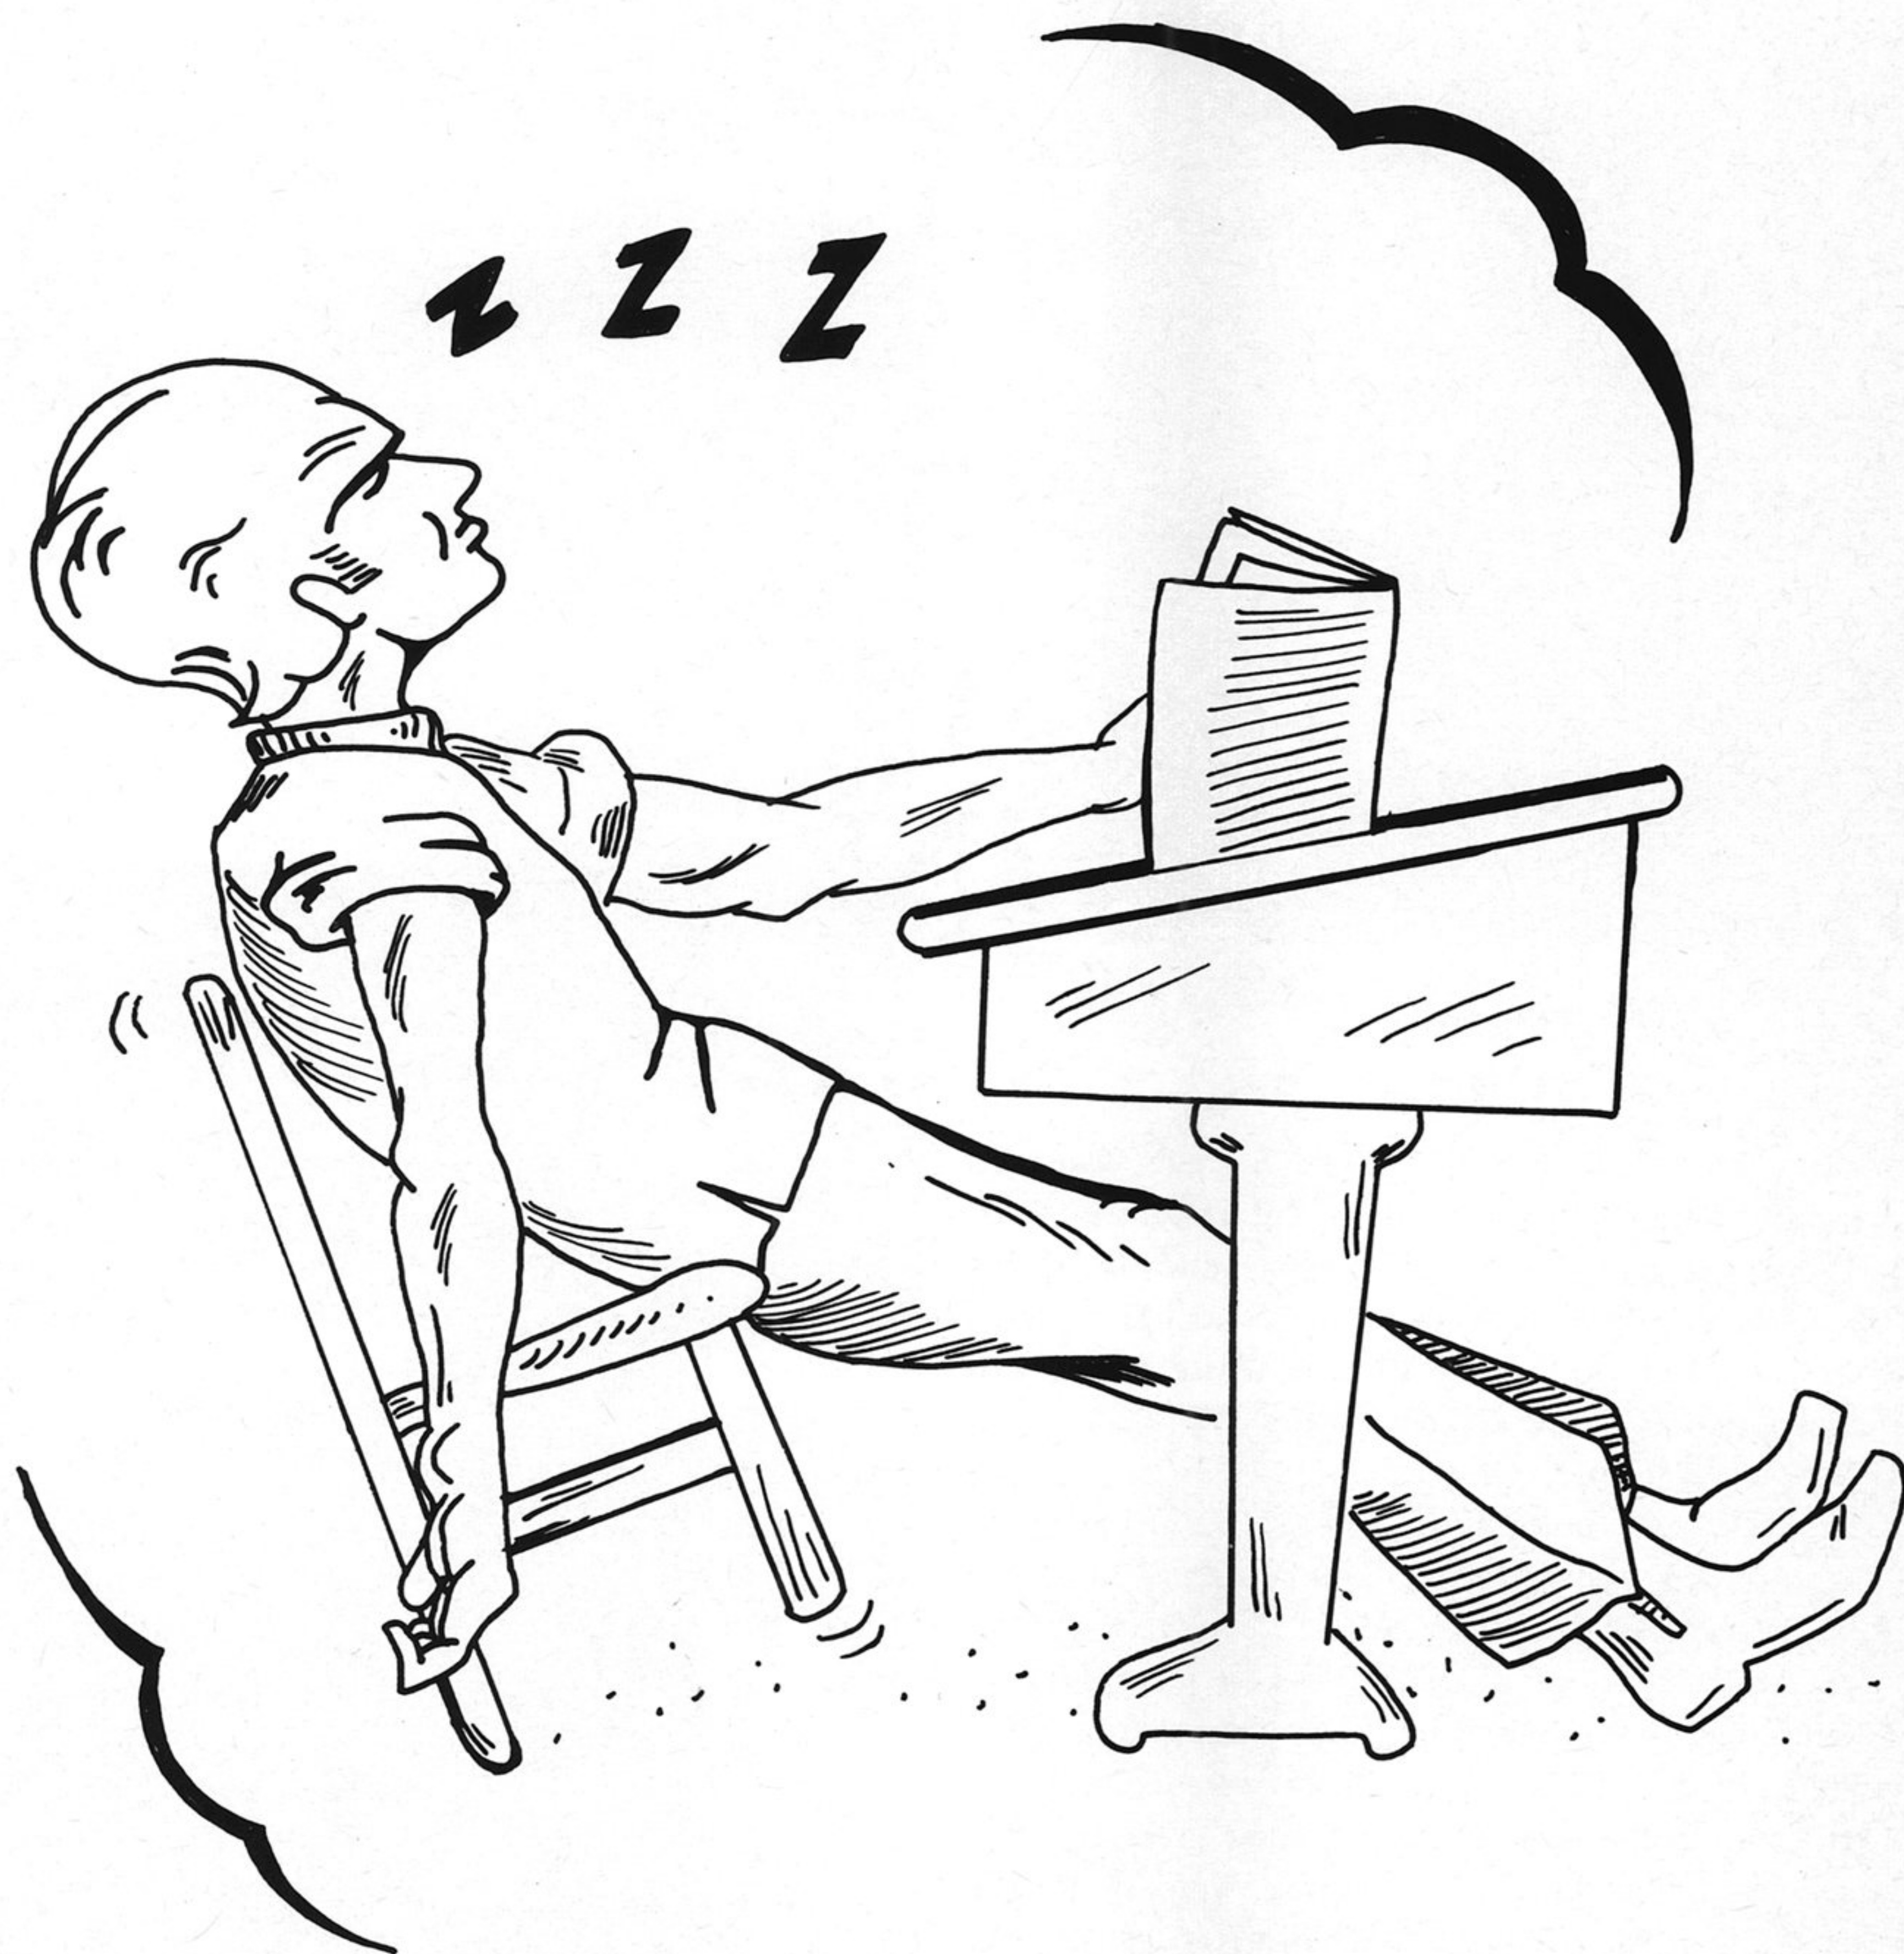

An impossible task, I think you'll agree —
At least that is how it seemed to me.

So I named no names, not even one,
And rested my case until '71.

With apologies,

Marjorie I. Campbell,
Class of '25.

WESTON

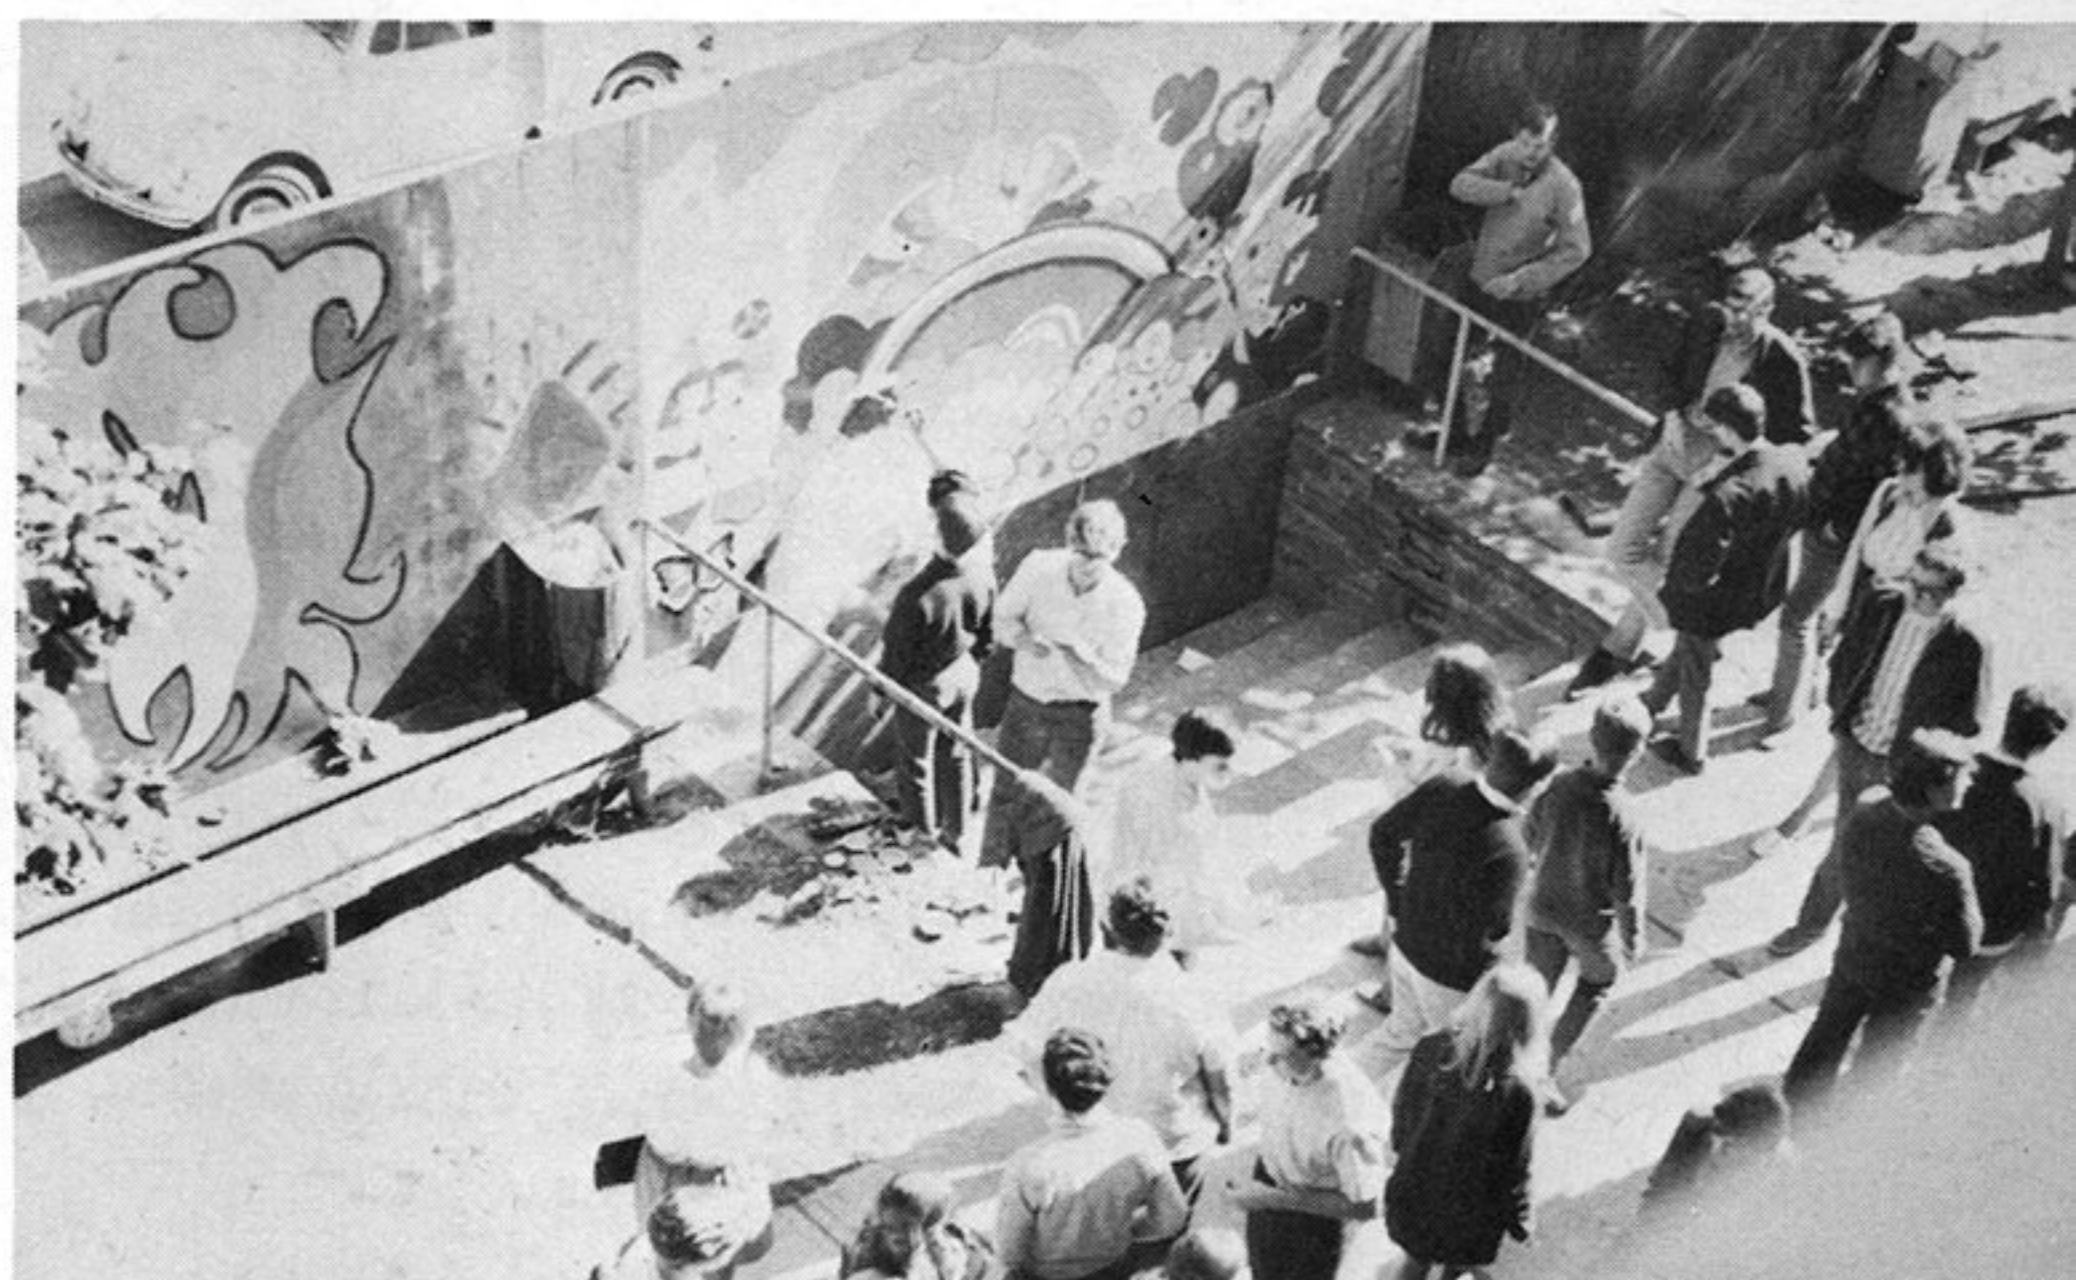

JILL FERGUSON and BOB FOLEY

Our first "School Spirit" Week of the year was perhaps Weston's most successful in some years. There was school spirit everywhere and the events held during the week were successes. The events were started off by the Blue & White Dance and included a Coke Dance, Rep Rally, Movie, Broomball Game, Grade Nine Initiation and, of course, the football Double-Header (in which Weston won both games!) The Grade 9 Initiation was something new this year and although it got out of hand at some points, it was a great way of inducting the grade nines into the school. BOB FOLEY and JILL FERGUSON were elected Mr. and Miss Blue and White for their great show of school spirit. Other candidates were SHERRY HUSSEY, NANCY NORRIDGE, RALPH REED, and SERGE CIVIERO.

Drama this year was highlighted by two evening programmes in which we presented six plays ranging from the well-known "Lottery" and "Sorry, Wrong Number" to the less familiar "Mother" by Brecht, from the serious drama "Mooney's Kid" to higher comedy "The Babies" and the totally absurd "The Bald Soprano" by Ionesco.

We were fortunate this year in having Mr. Cole, Mr. Clark, and Mr. E. Robinson whose background in Drama gave valuable assistance to our players; and Umberto Iorfida and Dan Bowering at the head of a very industrious stage crew. Two plays were partly or wholly student-directed, "Mother" and "The Bald Soprano".

The Drama Club's success has led to the inclusion of a Theatre Arts Course in the curriculum for 1970-71.

THE UNITED APPEAL DANCE

The second dance of the year was as big a success as the Blue and White. This, of course, was due to the support of Weston students. In return for this support we received a night of fun, dancing, and entertainment — (for the most part!) “Terry and The Pyrates” provided these for us with their “mood” music and fantastic sound.

The dance was also successful moneywise. A clear profit from the dance of $100 was forwarded to Campaign Chairman, JUDY BEAUMONT, for Weston’s United Appeal Drive. This in itself shows how hard some W.C.I. students worked for the United Appeal Drive and this hard work helped to make the U. A. DANCE successful also.

THE UNITED APPEAL REVIEW

Lacking strong school support, the energetic cast of the U.A. Review pulled through and presented their variety show, to help the United Appeal Drive. PETER DOVEY and FRANCES CAMPBELL produced, directed, and wrote the show along with co-writers, SONIA BAISTROCCHI, RON GIBB, EDNA HOBBS and ROSS ZIMMERMAN. MR. D. CHONG was the staff advisor.

The show’s theme was the contrast between two distinct social classes and it tried to get the audience thinking. The small pit band under the direction of GLEN MORLEY gave a notable performance as well as TOM GREEN, TONY SILEIKA and ROSS ZIMMERMAN in their skit “THE GRAVEDIGGERS.” It was a fine show considering the poor response from the majority of Weston students.

The Theme of the show was not only entertainment but an illustration of why we support the United Appeal Organization. The show was produced and directed by Peter Dovey and Frances Campbell with music provided by Glenn Morley and his group.

Many thanks must go to Mr. Chong for his invaluable assistance. Later in the year the whole school combined their efforts to put on the old Weston Collegiate's last variety show.

1969 has been a very unfortunate year for our Art Club. On Monday, October 13 we began our major project of painting the fence which separates the old school from the new one. By Thursday of that week the four schools involved had finished painting. Unfortunately, early in the next week, the whole painting was defaced with grey paint and the efforts of the Art Club and indeed the entire student body were sadly rewarded.

In 1970, however, we are anticipating a successful field trip to the McMichael Art Gallery in Kleinburg on April 16.

Special praise should go to Benny Guidolin at this time for his title page design for the Yearbook.

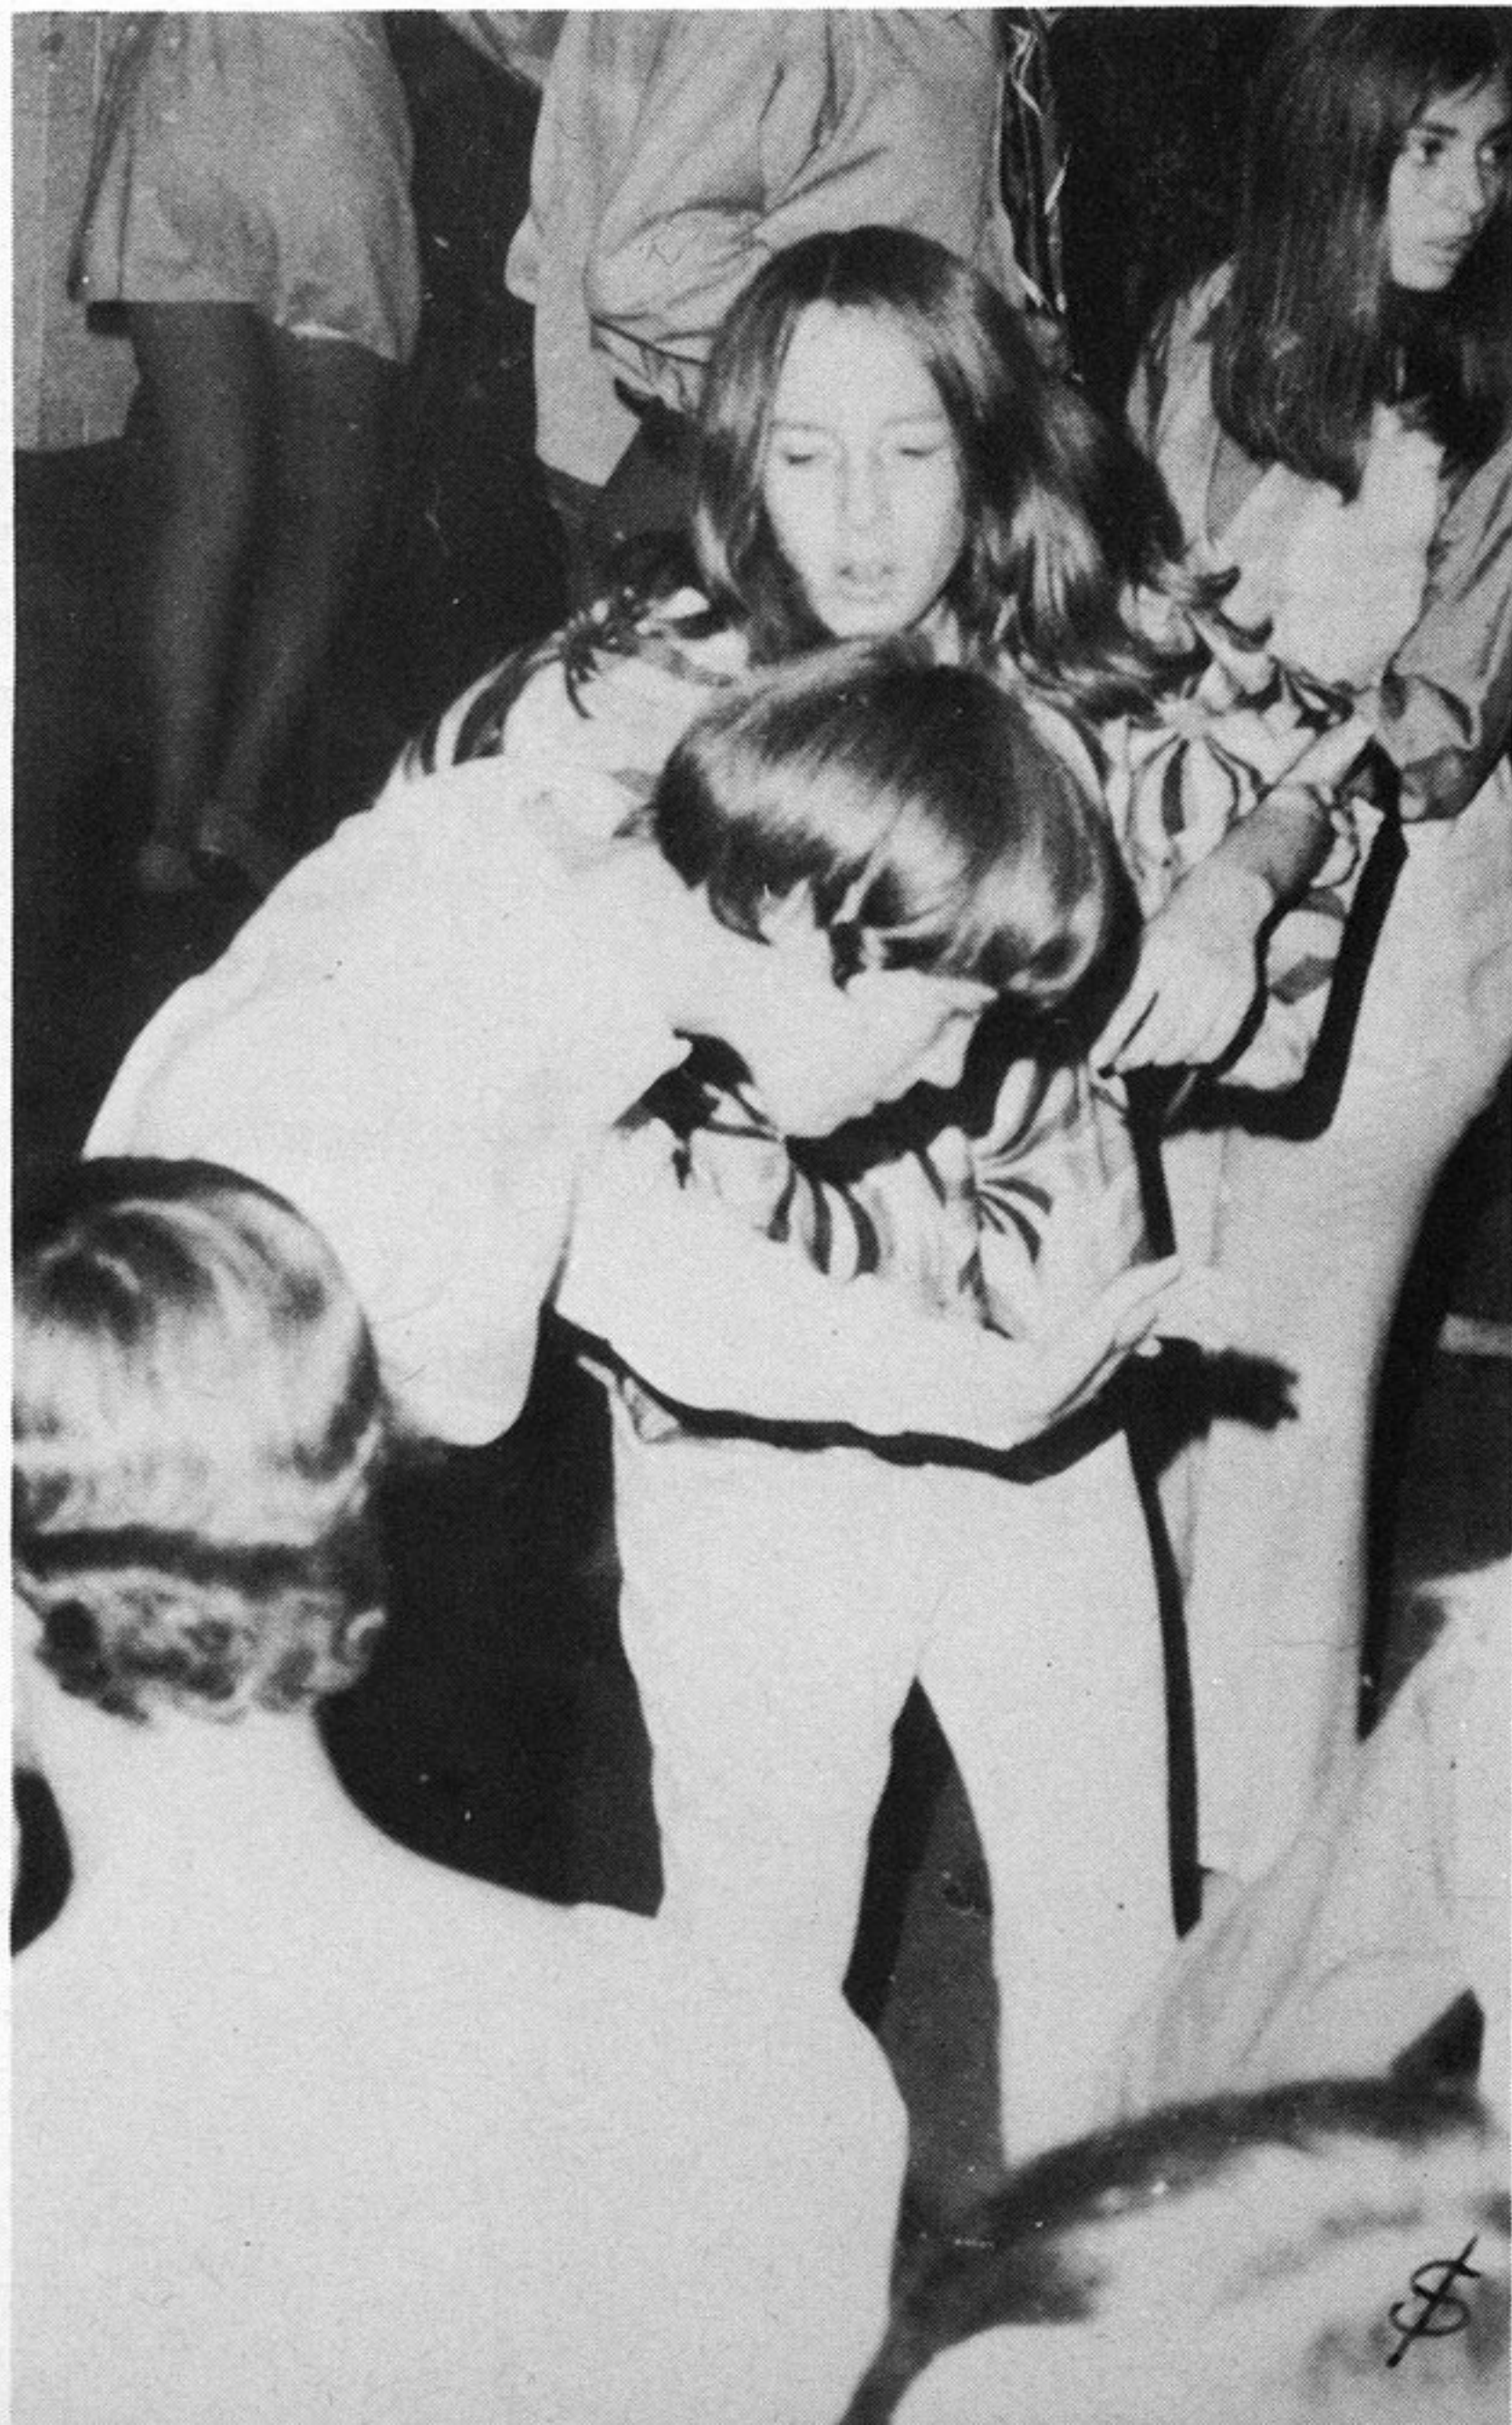

Steve Quinlan

Breaking tradition, the BLUE AND WHITE DANCE this year was held on the Friday preceding our Blue and White Week. It was a fantastic way of getting things off to a good start. The "High Tension" supplied the music to the school-spirit minded crowd who turned out. The dancing crowd also included many of last year's graduates. The Student Council made a profit on the dance and it was therefore decided to continue holding school dances.

Summer's End

The morning broke still and clear.
 Unannounced there came suddenly
 A soft, cool breeze
 That rustled the branches and only gently
 Swayed the trees;
 But the wind could contain her laughter no more
 As she convulsed the trees and clouded the sky
 And with pleasure she watched from her door
 As summer slowly started to die.

SOMETHING I LIKE

I remember a day,
 long,
 deep into summer,
 drenched with a heavy penetrating heat that overwhelmed everything but the endlessly rolling field of wheat, creating a distinctive new shade of gold with its every turn and the light,
 whispering breeze that brought relief.

The Quiet Man

The quiet man has listened
 To everything they've said,
 They told him what would happen;
 They told him who was dead.
 They watched him while he listened
 To everything they read.
 They wished he could have told them,
 What they should have said.
 Instead he just kept smiling
 And staring straight ahead
 The quiet man would listen.
 The quiet man was dead!

SHE-DEVIL OF SIAM

Proud, disdainful, she sits on the hearth,
Blue eyes fiery with feline rage,
Silently daring that any should cross
The sacred path of her domain.
With loud hiss and short deep growl
This queen arches her regal back;
Transformed, a tiger in rigid crouch,
She slowly, unerringly prepares to spring.
Back to Siam, you vile-tempered beast;
Child of the devil, eternally damned.

SENIOR POETRY WINNER

I watched ecstatically as Villella conferred birth.
Once here, now there
Pirouetting into space as a leaf twirling in a whirlwind,
Drawing no breath, but instead, leaping
Panther-like
From one wing of the platform to the other,
Pumping his thighs like a runner
Closing the finish-line.
Legs thrust forward and up,
Toes barely kissing earth,
He pivoted his fibrous body
And using his arms as wings to rise,
Held himself suspended in mid-air,
Then slammed
Doll-like
To the ground.
I could not see his face clearly from where I stood,
But knew too well
The downward pull on his mouth
As his muscles threatened to tighten;
The eyes white with impetuosity and rapture;
Then the quick
Mocking laugh at gravity,
As he picked himself up
Once more
To orbit the stage,
Spinning a fantasy of excitement and marvel
In the web of his legs.

Once Icarus,
Now Pegasus,
Soon Villella would dance a legend of his own.

JUNIOR POETRY WINNER

A FLASH OF HISTORY

It was quiet
In the skies.
Galaxies crossed the heavens
Soundlessly.
The stars were silent
As they moved.
The planets followed their course.
They were silent.
There was peace.
It had been this way
For eons of time.
It should be this way
Forever.

But one star
Was not still.
For around that star
A planet circled —
The first planet with Life.
Life called Man.
There were different kinds of men.
Black men.
And white men.
And the two races met
And there was peace no longer.
The universe cringed
At gunshots
Echoed
With abuse,
And seethed
With hate.

The peace of the skies
Was shattered.
It would be repaired.
The great experiment of Life
Had failed.
That planet must die.
So in the secret ways
Of the stars
The planet was removed —
Silently.
None knew how.
But once more,
For eternity this time,
It was quiet
In the skies.

JUNIOR PROSE WINNER

Good-bye, Weston.

I'm leaving you now, Weston. I'm leaving you early. I haven't been here for two years yet, and now I have to go. I'm only in grade ten, Weston, only a junior. But just the same, it hurts me to go.

Yes, Weston, it hurts. It hurts to think of all the things I will never do here. I will never know the mysterious halls of the new Weston Collegiate. I will never collect my five Conning Towers, my five ID cards, or especially my questionable five honour pins. I will never graduate from within these walls; never write another exam; never shiver at another football game; never bring another can of soup for a Christmas basket; never attend (or not attend!) another orchestra rehearsal. Oh, yes, there will be these things at my next school. There are these things at every school. But here they are different. Here they are more friendly.

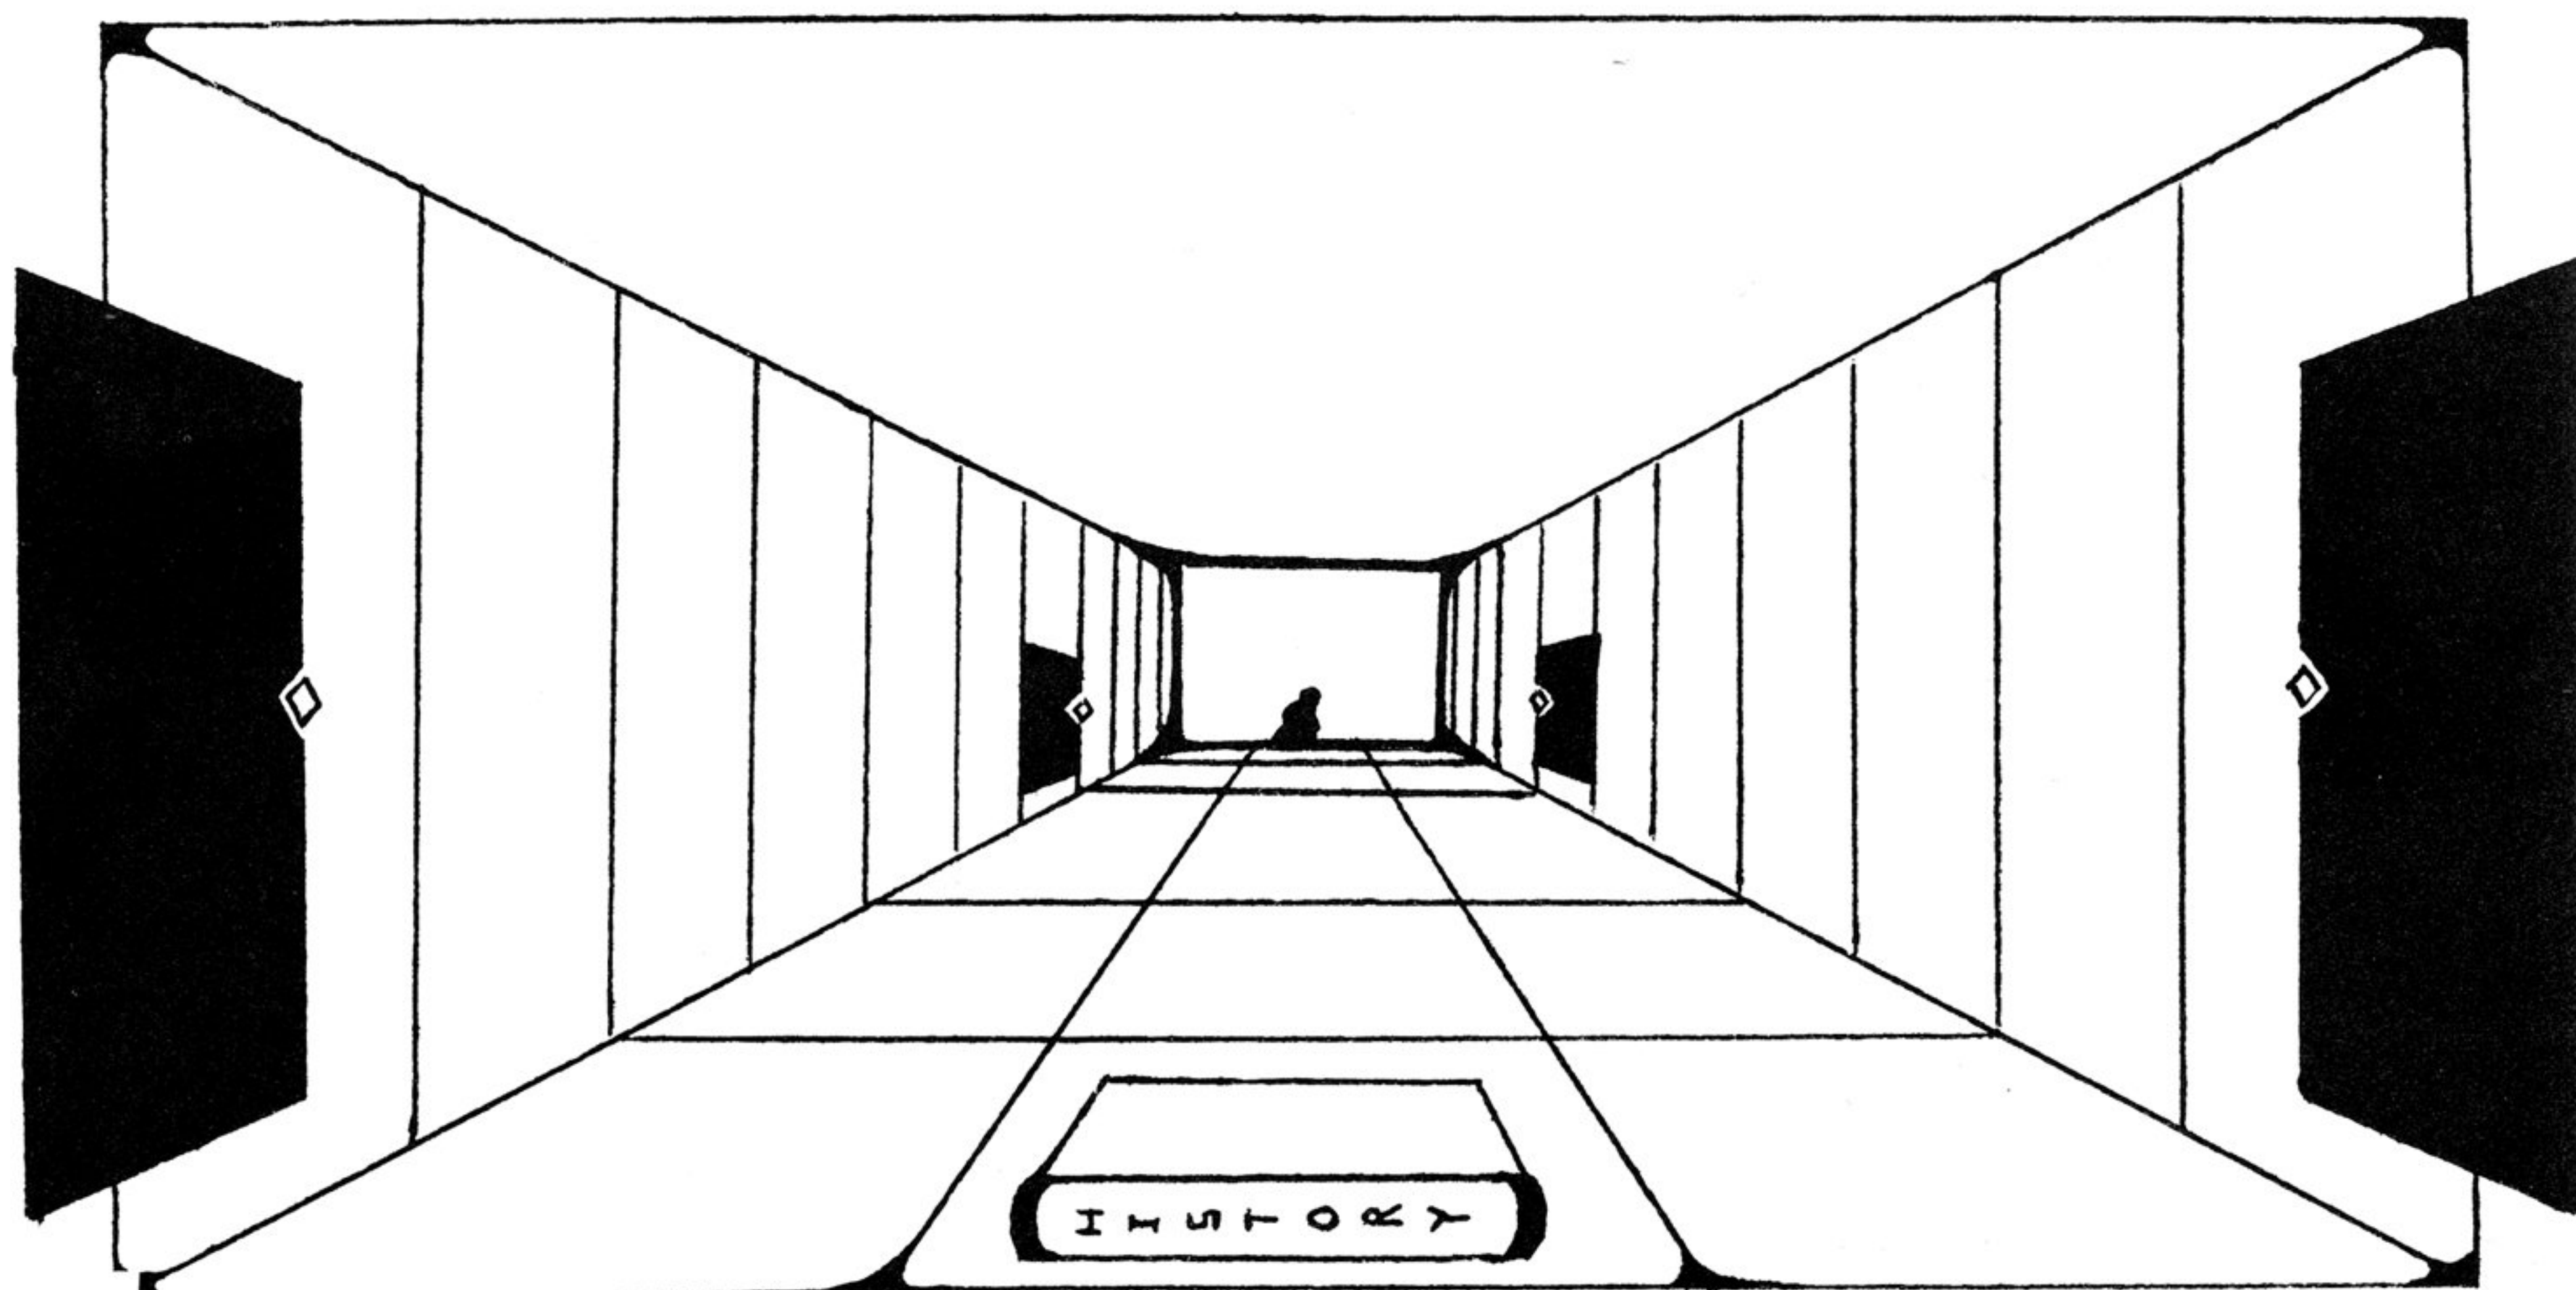

I love you, Weston. I love your rickety walls and your worn-down staircases. I love your noisy radiators and your silent bell-system. But most of all I love your students – my friends. I must leave your students, Weston, who have been my friends, some for many years, some for only a few months. But they are all old friends, and it is friends who make a school. And it is thinking of them that brings a lump to my throat.

I'll never forget you, Weston. You will be always in my mind. I will always remember each classroom, each stairway, and each exit. I will not forget eating French fries on Friday in the cafeteria or being late for opening exercises on Monday in 202. But I will especially not forget the pain of leaving you, Weston. Oh, yes, the pain will dull, but I will never forget.

I'll miss you, Weston. You've been good to me, and I've tried to be worthy of you these two years. They've been fun. Thank-you, Weston.

Good-bye

Dream

What day is it today? I often find myself wondering, and I don't know why, except I am so unsure of the true date, and after all, I am a calendar, though I read only others.

But it is so strange that I should remember a dream I had, and I haven't even lived it yet; it has not yet come to life, though it will, soon enough, and so I write it. I write it, hoping perhaps tomorrow, or the day after, it will sneak up on me; I'll have it, and I'll have to live it, devoid of choice, for I am not captain of my fate.

I suppose it was the country somewhere, or the invisible city of someone, some road, or just a much-used path. Being an old dream, it sometimes had a fence on both sides, and an old farmer with his ox-driven cart, a patch on his blue-jeans which looks just like my handkerchief.

If it were morning, too early to meet the sun, I would go search for it, running over the rounded tops of hills, sometimes blue, sometimes green, depending on when it was, where it was, and where I ran over the rounded tops of hills. Those hills had sides so far off I couldn't even see them – or else they weren't there . . .

I remember I dressed all in black, and I was so serious that I hoped sometime, someone might believe me if I told them I searched the truth, and spent my time examining the old Russian poems, hoping to come across, stumble, perhaps fall flat-footed across the reasons and the questions. Yes, they'd believe me, and I'd run on to the next house, like Paul Revere, only in black, not in whatever he wore.

That dream didn't always come, but I'd wait for it, hoping for a meaning that I hoped might exist in all the hours I spent deliberating upon it, and all the purposes I'd ascribed to it. I searched on and on, like the fool I was, never realizing it was just another part of me, part of you, part of we who vainly boast, saying we know the reason for all that exists, and, not finding that reason, bounded on all sides, by our feeble minds, we'd scornfully purge our memory of something which we refuse to recognize, because it is too simple for us. We forget that being itself is reason enough for existence, and prefer to drown ourselves in that which we create of ourselves, give a meaning to, and seemingly worship as an idol, rather than admit that our own artificial creation is of no consequence, of no value, a con, like the mask we have all too often forged for ourselves, and, by the act of adoption, have imposed upon reality.

ARTEMIS

The soft, pale green of the woody glen Opens
And lets the golden rays of Apollo
Warm the moist, brown earth.
Grass forms a lush, cool carpet
By the gurgling stream.
Drop upon tiny drop,
Merges and trickles over the smooth, cold pebbles
At first rushing by with deafening roar
Swirling, splashing, dashing against hard, black, jutting rock;
And then, weakening, slowing,
It sleepily drifts past
Into the land of Diana.
Tall oak and fir tower over this land,
Housing tribes of screeching squirrels
Or flocks of multi-coloured, winged Dryads
That swoop and soar overhead.
The orange and flame, flower-spotted bushes
Rustle with a furtive, stealthy movement
And a small, snowy-white rabbit
Emerges.
Sniffing the cool air and sensing the peaceful silence
He bravely hops forward a little way.
A tall, statuesque woman,
Light of step, russet hair bound up in coils of gold,
She carries a quiver of arrows on her bronzed shoulder.
Stooping low, speaking in slow, soft tones

She scoops up the precious white animal
 Silhouetted in the blanketing grey shadows,
 Haven from her brother's blazing spotlight.
 And, turning swiftly to one side,
 She drops her tiny subject
 And darts away with only the soft padding of her sandalled feet
 Accompanying her fleeting shadow over the hill.

BACK ROW: Dave Edwards (Water Boy) Bruce Woods, Larry Glen. Olaf Gobien, Doug Izon, Bob McKown, Bob "Toboggan", Mike Twitchin, Richard Foley (manager). SECOND ROW: "Hot Dog" Fruen, Doug Cruikshank, "The" Michael Hamilton, Carl Godfrey, Dave Bolander, Bill Stephenson, Serge Civiero. FIRST ROW: John Morton, Mike Duffin, Enrico Dilello, Brian Watt, Jim Tait, Ralph Fedato, Bobo Foley, Steve Grove. COACHES: Mr. Fruen, Mr. Bruce.

Football is a team sport and Weston Ironmen had a tough team this year.

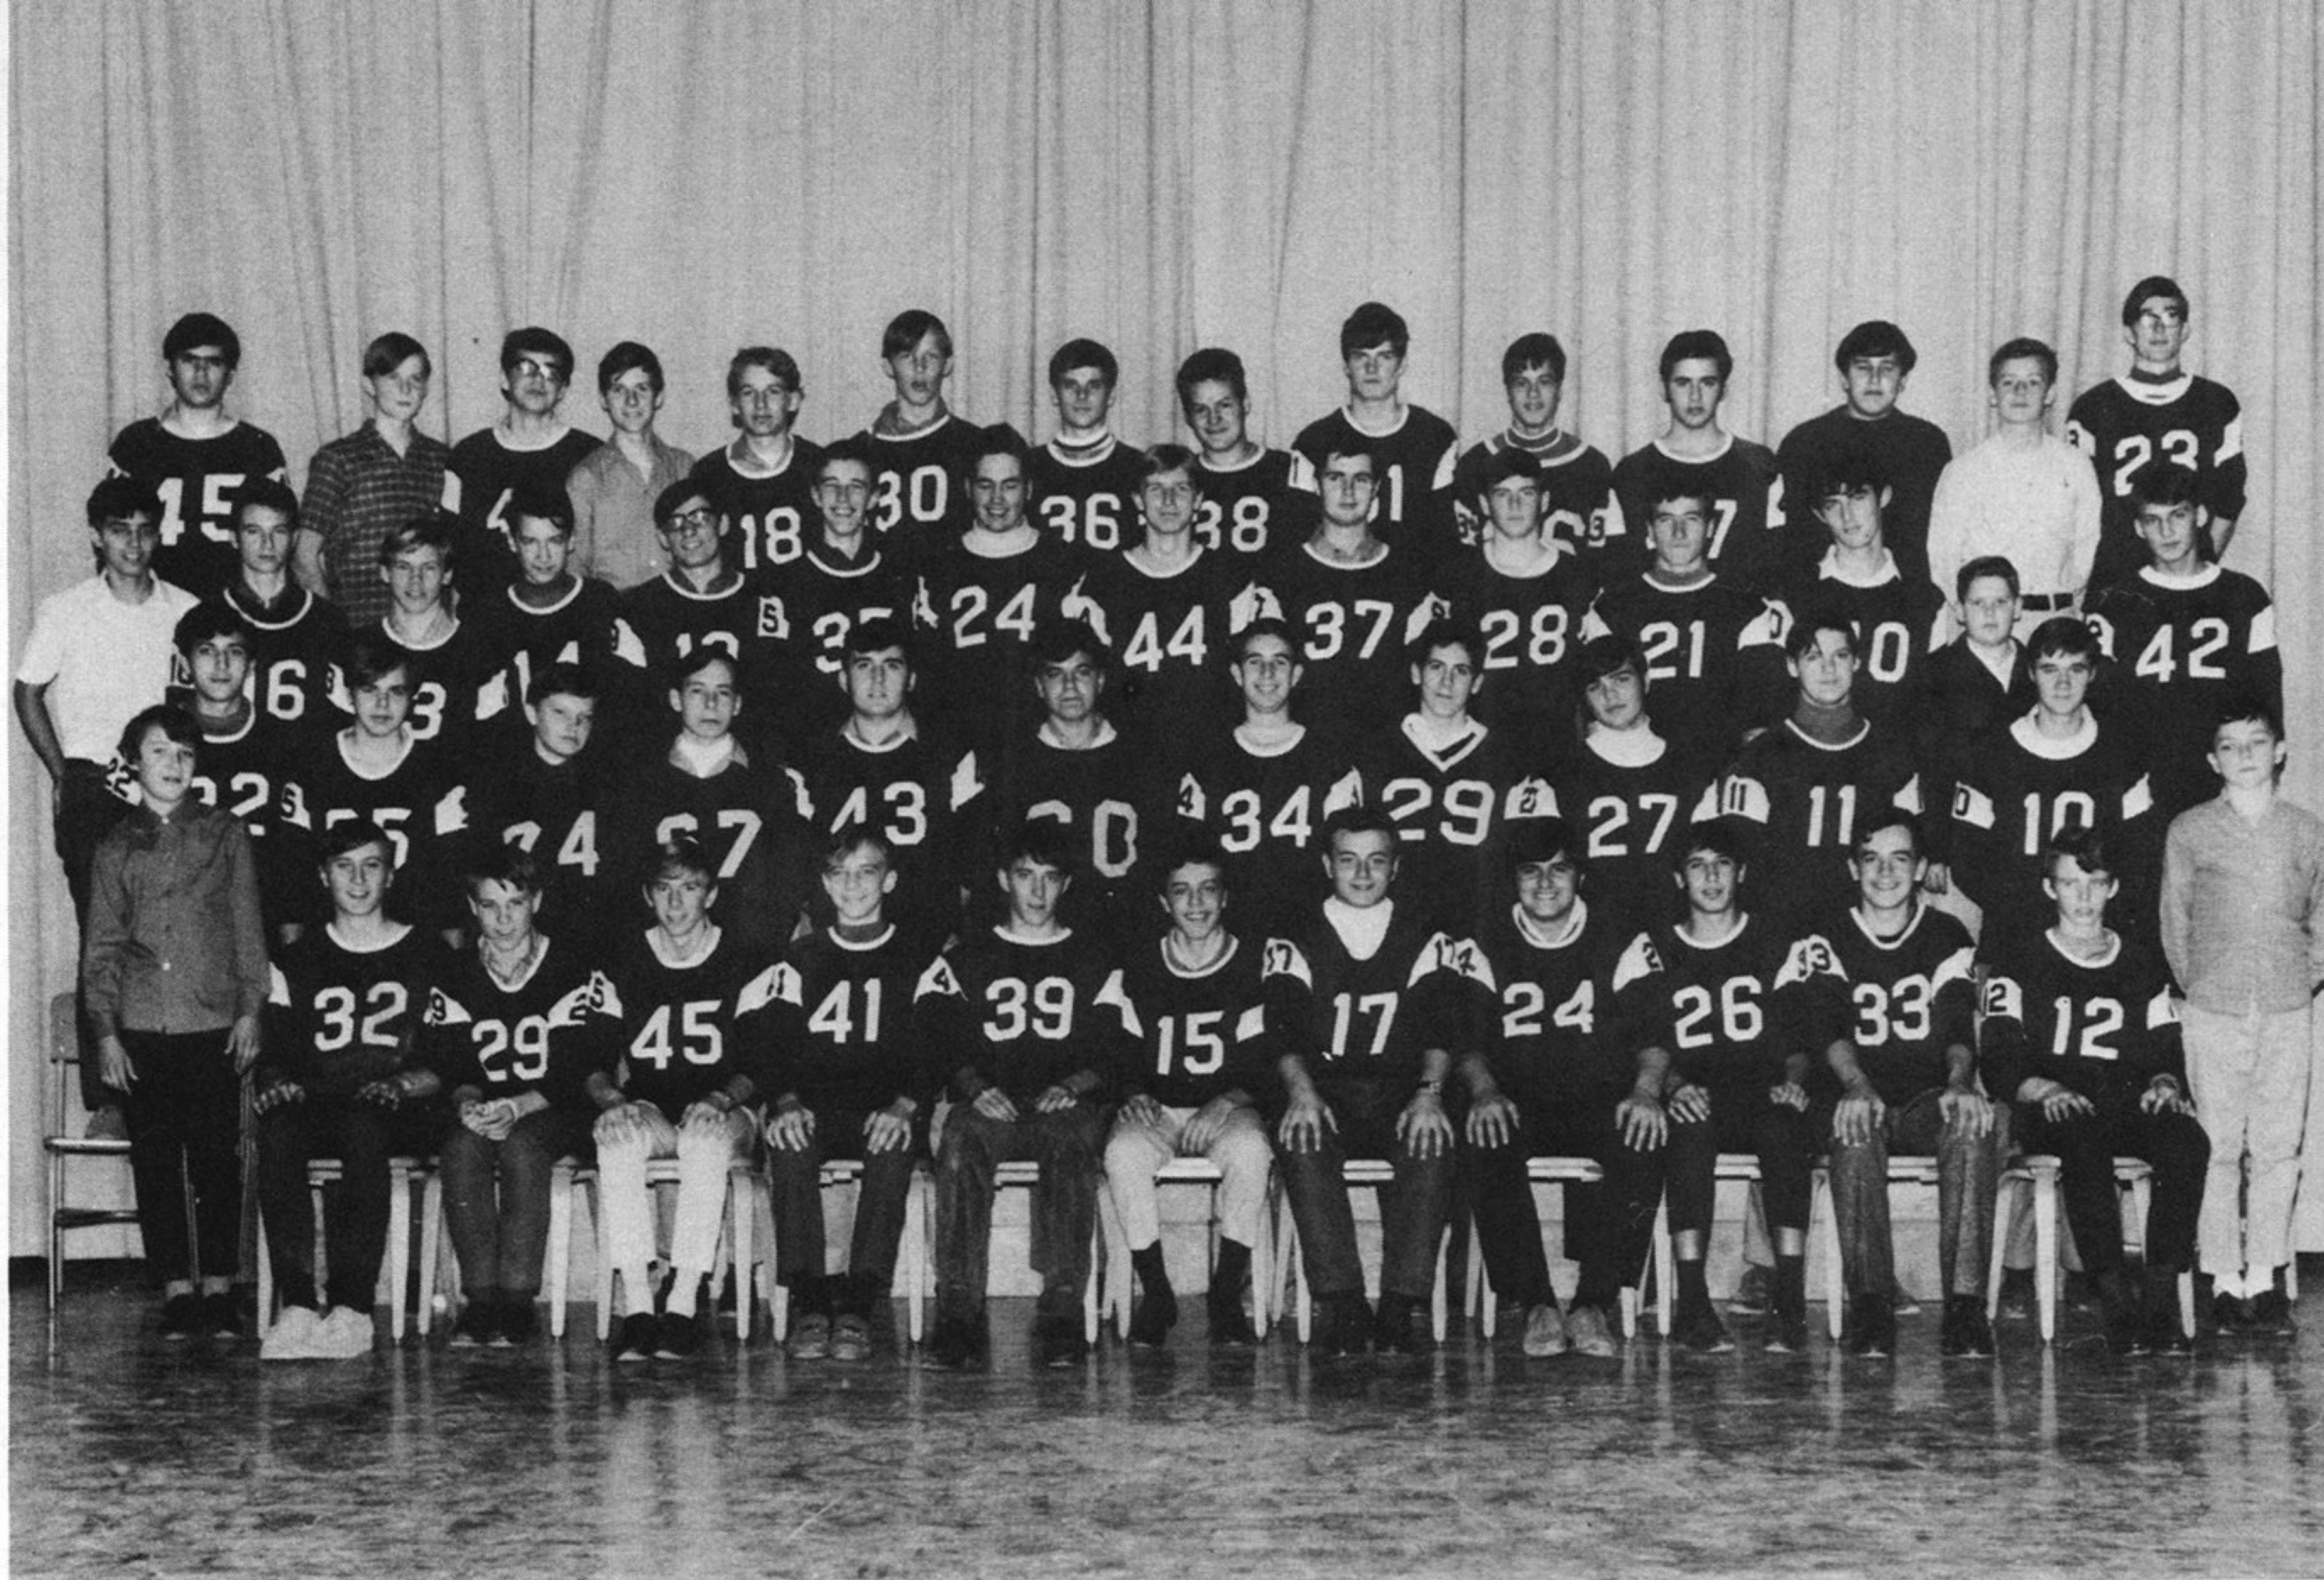

Under the astute coaching of Mr. Bruce and Mr. Frewin they began the season with two wins in exhibition play, beating Boylen and Don Mills.

Gregg Embrey suffered a broken collar bone in one of the early practices after being given "a love tap" by John Eddie. The regular season was played hard and with lots of spirit. Weston beat Leaside, Runnymede, Vaughan, and York Memo, while they lost to Harvey and East York. The Ironmen's defence ranked second in the league but they tried harder.

Mike Quarrington received crutches for his efforts in the last league game when his leg broke, but the team moved on to the semi-finals.

In the sudden death game against East York, Weston was behind 15-14, with only a few minutes remaining. They tied the score but the referee called it back, and Weston ended the season with a heartbreaker.

This year's Junior Football Team had a very exciting season. The season was ended in a hard fought battle with U.T.S. which resulted in a loss by two, two-point conversions.

The team was led by Captains Mario Jannetta and Rudy Ciotti. Under the capable quarterbacking of Barry Cousineau and George Cowie the team was led to many exciting victories. For the first three games the defence held the opposition scoreless while the offense ran up 57 points.

Our leading ground gainer was Mario Jannetta; he was backed by the efforts of Jim (O.J.) Pettie, Paul Swirla, and Jim Popofski. Other ground gainers were our ends Brian Armstrong, Larry Galajda, and Blair Seckington. Without the strength of our linemen none of these attacks could have been accomplished.

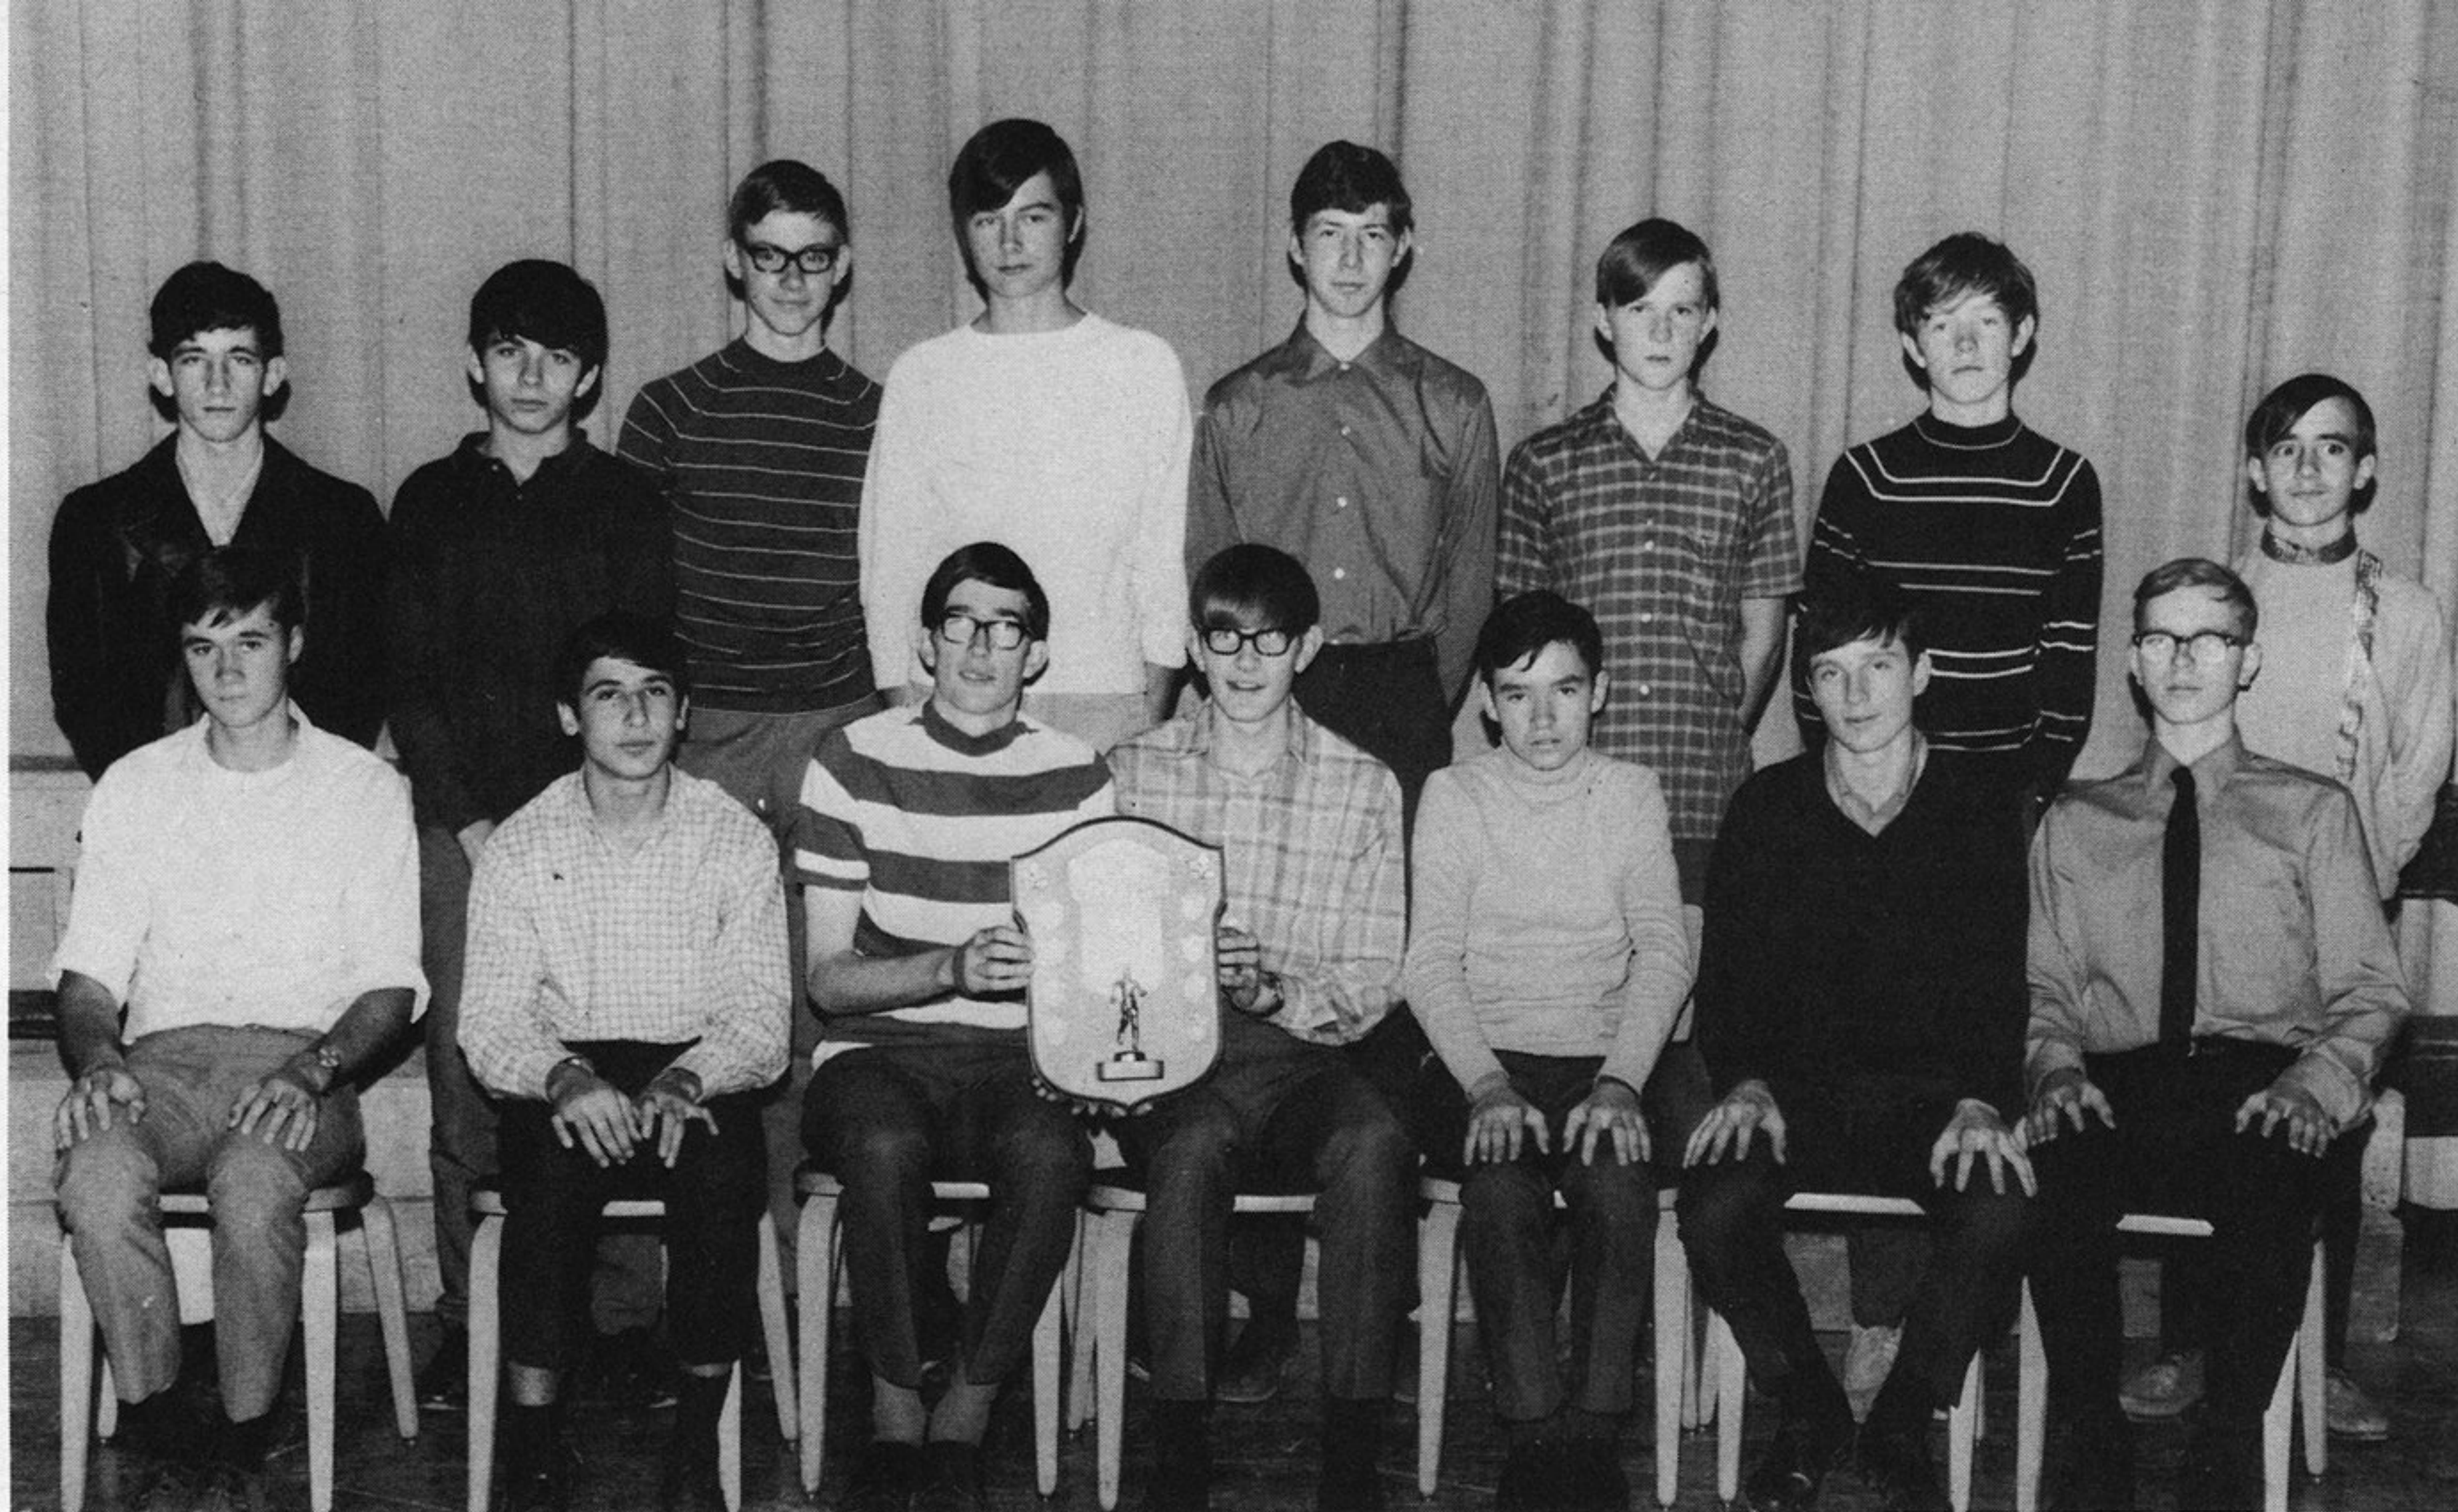

This year's defence held the oppositions very well, and in many cases intercepted, or recovered fumbles to chalk up more points for Weston.

All of these efforts were only possible with persistent coaching and instruction, time and patience of our coaches Mr. Nadin and Mr. Both. Congratulations should go to our coaches for the great job they did. Also thanks should be given to our two managers, Brad Thornback and Gary Bastin.

Weston runners again showed themselves in the winner's circle this year. After competing in preliminary meets at Sunnybrook Park and York University, the teams met at High Park for the Borough of York Meet. The bantam team showed its prowess over the rugged two-mile course but was beaten into second place by George Harvey. The junior team had more success. An excellent second place finish by Brian Armstrong and good running by Jim Popofski and Barry Cousineau backed up the lead position over the three-mile course and gave Weston the Junior Championship for the second year in succession.

Pat Burnie, Frank Cerllo, Robert Alger, Clarence Hood, Glen Grey, Philip Reed, Stan Kolanko, John Gotch, Tom Birkett, and Ken Davis also supported the team throughout the season.

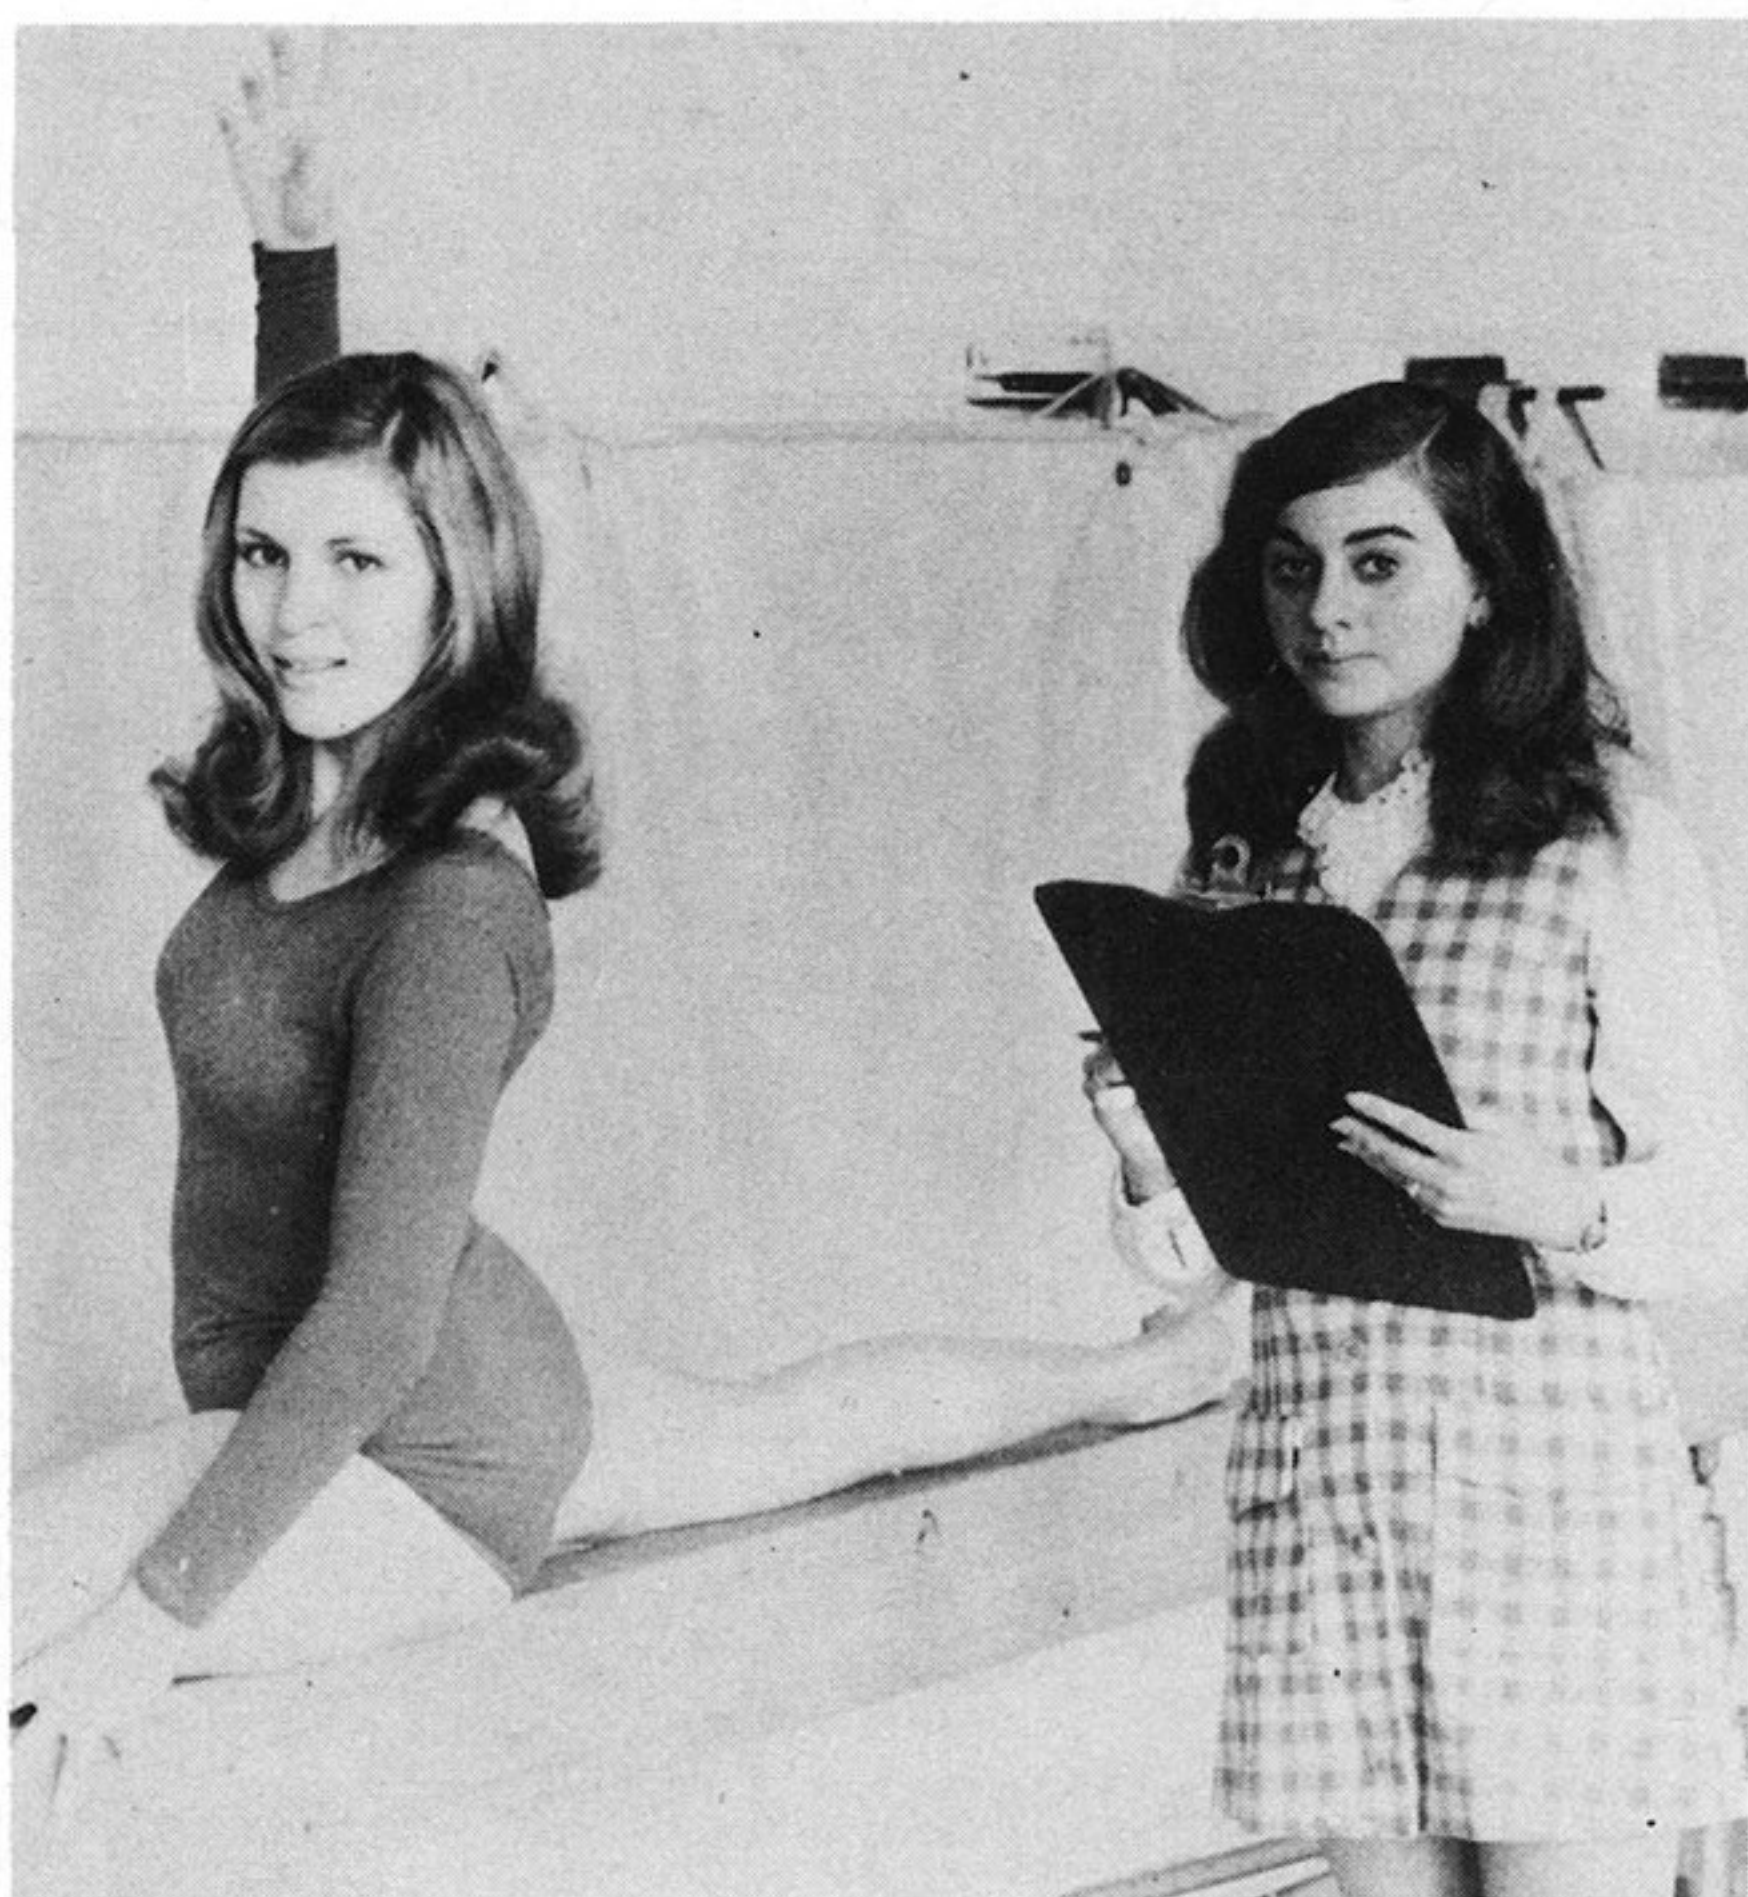

The members of the team would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Fullerton, Mr. Robinson and the members of the P.E. staff for the time and energy they put into organizing the team this year. With more support from the student body, Cross Country at Weston has great potential for the future.

THE OVERSEER

At this time it might be wise to try, and perceive of the light of Him.
It's impossible to actually see Him,
the light is so bright.
But if we turn and look in the opposite direction
And see how far the darkness is illuminated
by this one great Light,
We may muster the courage to spark ourselves,
And walking from Him, to see the Event
And it all for ourselves.

A FOND FAREWELL TO MR. BAXTER

It is indeed a fond farewell. In fact it has been said that Mr. Baxter was probably the only teacher who knew all the teachers by their first names within a week. Since I never took woodworking and was never in his class I can't give a personal opinion of his teaching, but I do remember the cheery greeting he often met me with as I came in the side door. All the boys that were asked thought Mr. Baxter was a good teacher and said they would miss him. Great words of praise coming from Weston boys!

After his intention of leaving Weston was announced Mr. Baxter received presentations from the Weston staff, the Ground-Hog Association, the present Technical staff, the grade twelve Technical students, and the Students' Council. Contrary to rumour, Mr. Baxter is not retiring but transferring to George Harvey Secondary School as there will not be a woodworking department in the new school.

So long, Mr. Baxter. After thirty-one years of seeing you around the school, we'll miss you!

FAREWELL AND THE BEST OF LUCK TO MR. GARLIN

This year, we must say "farewell" to one of our favourite teachers, Mr. Garlin, who has served the school so well for the past eight years.

Mr. Garlin graduated from the Academy of Music at Weimar, Germany, and finished his Master's at the Academy of Music in Berlin in 1936. Although he was presented with his Teacher's Degree at this time, he preferred instead to play in such famous orchestras as the State Opera orchestra in Weimar, and the Stuttgart Symphony orchestra. Later, in Canada, he played with the Halifax Symphony and the Toronto Symphony orchestras.

He came to Canada in 1952 with his family, and began life here as a simple labourer at the docks at Toronto Harbour, but in his spare time he worked for his Canadian teaching certificates and diplomas. Mr. Garlin came into teaching in 1961, when he taught music at Brighton, Ontario. After a year, he began his career at Weston.

His life is devoted to music and his students. In his spare time, between 1948 and 1952, he composed several choral and orchestra works. Through his tremendous knowledge and talent for music, he has helped hundreds of students through musical programmes. He gets his satisfaction through seeing, each year, a few pupils entering the Faculty of Music at the University of Toronto.

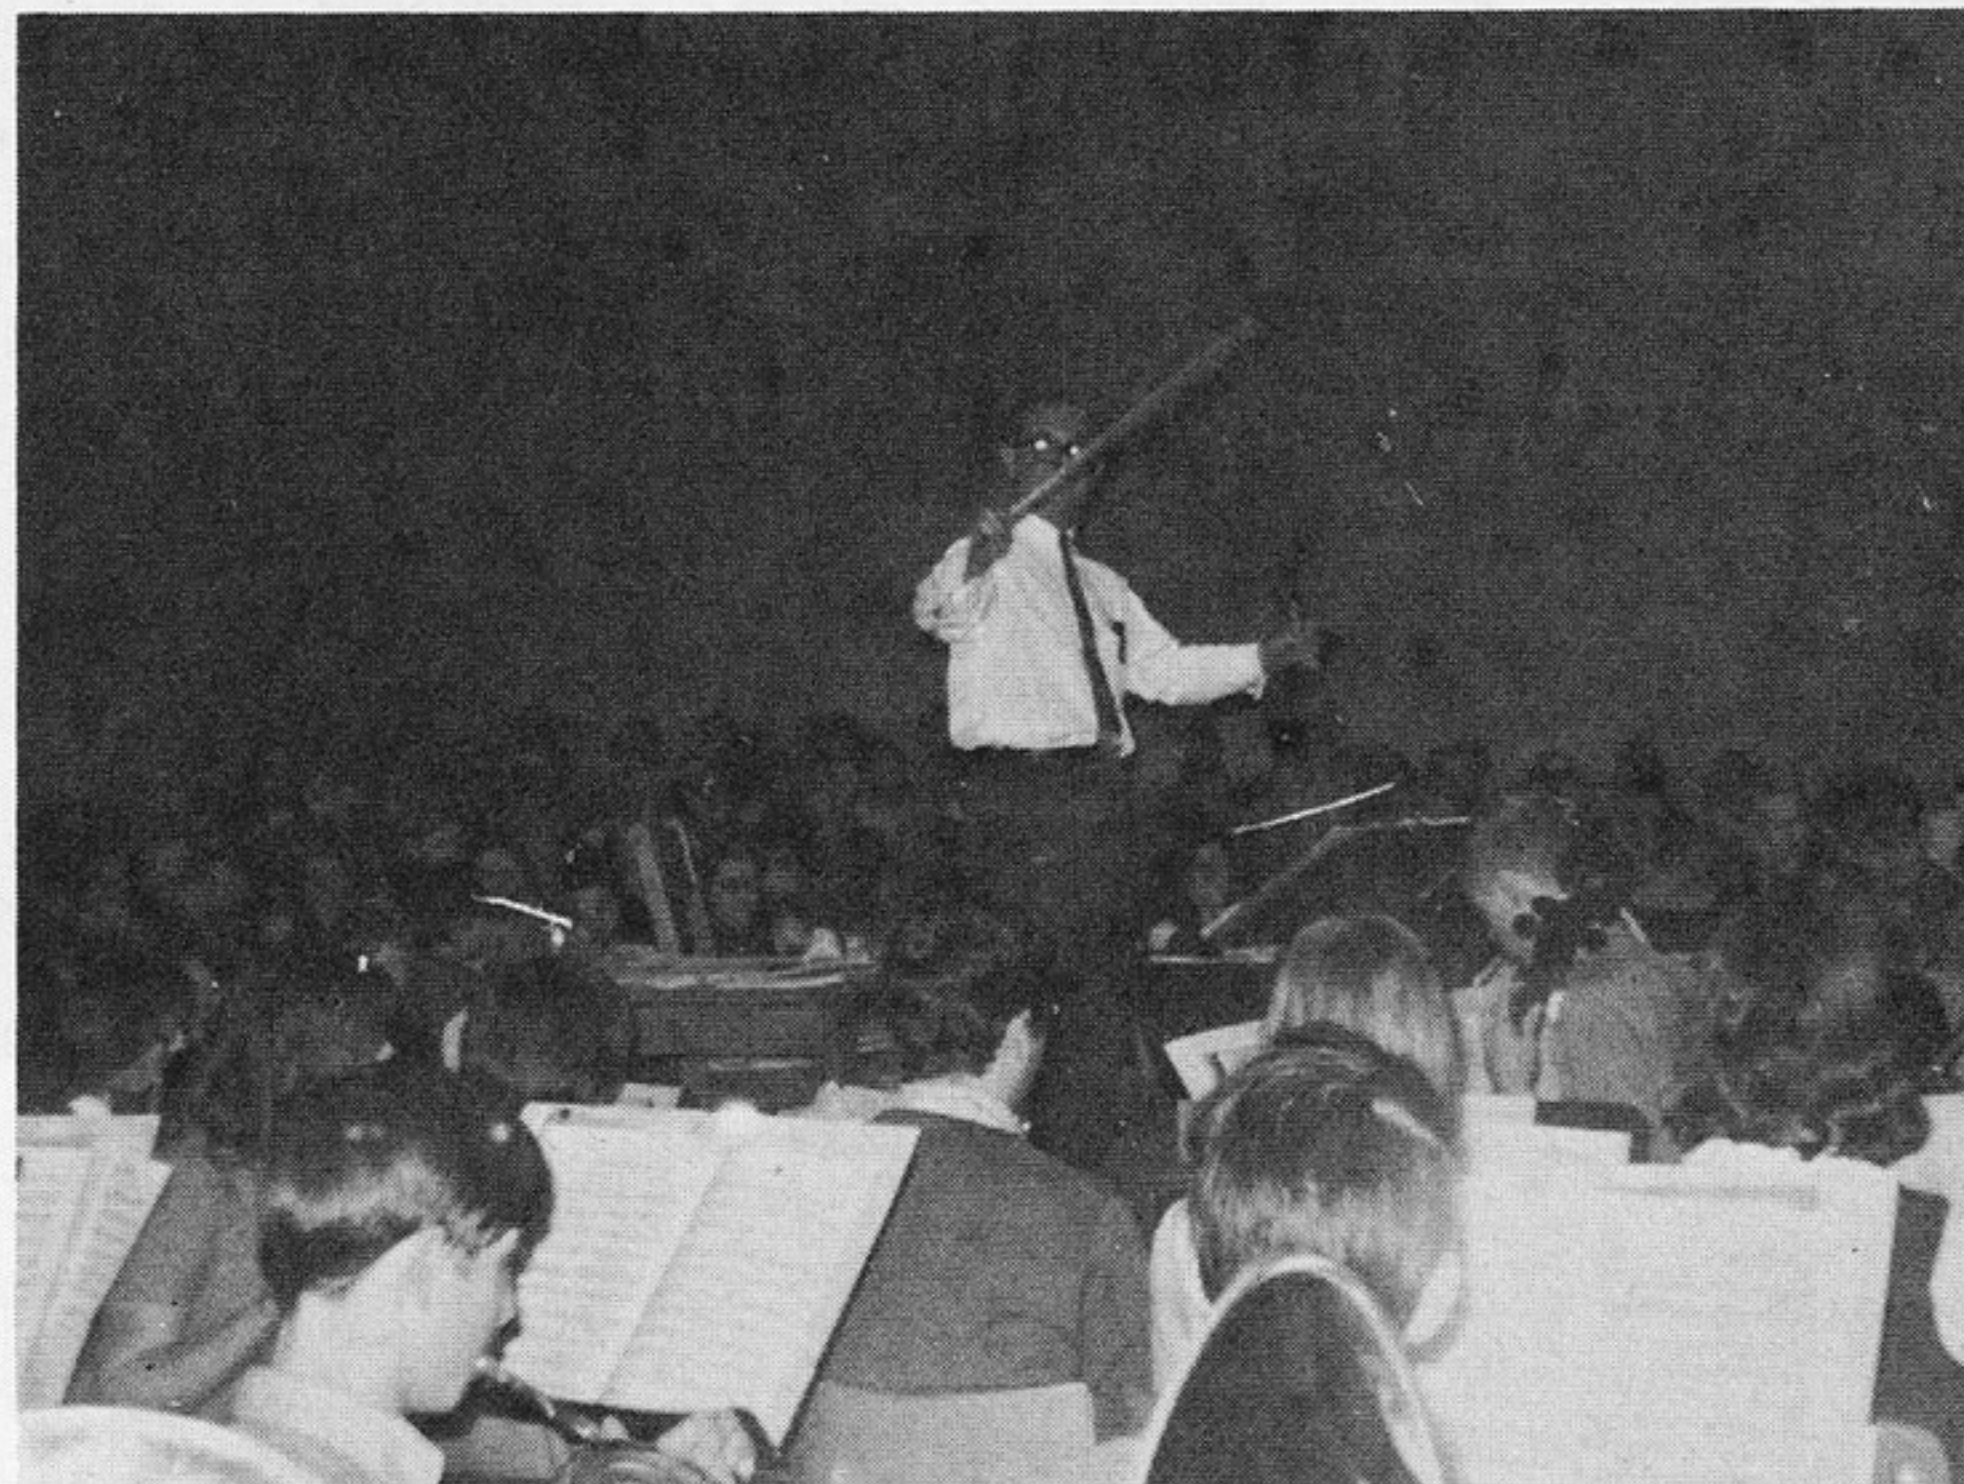

We, the students, will remember Mr. Garlin not only for his memorable performances, but also for his precious gift of humour, and his shoulder always available to students who seek comfort.

Who could forget those assemblies, music nights, commencements and football games, where Mr. Garlin added his spicy, sweet touches?

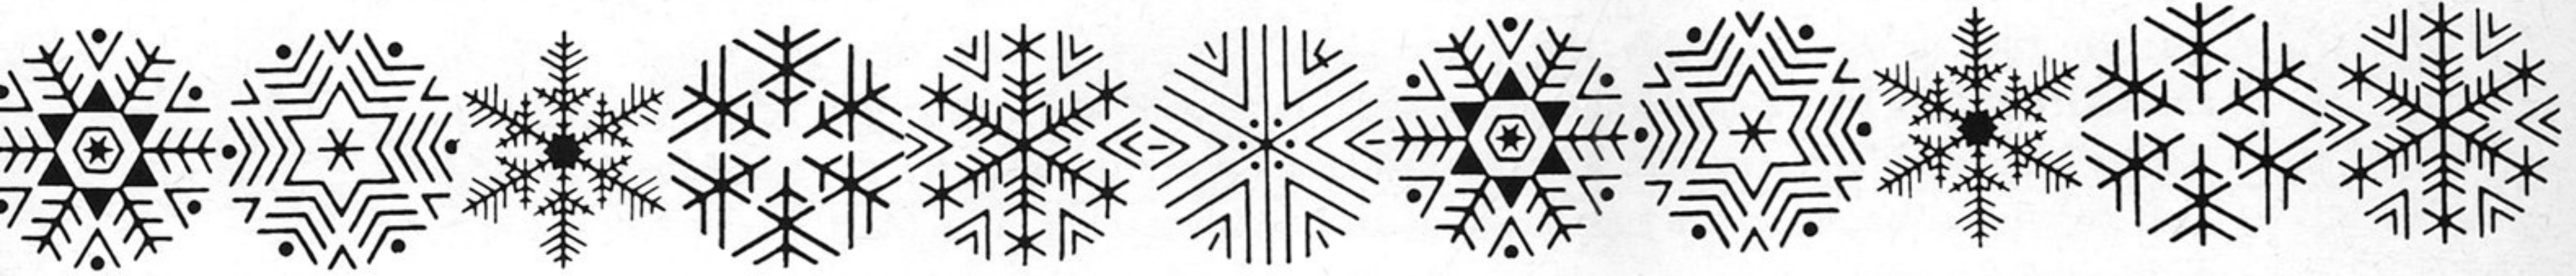

His classes of students will always remember the memorable spares, card games, interesting theory periods, loud practical classes, endless scales and studies, fun exams, and above all, the love and devotion Mr. Garlin has always given.

Mr. Garlin has made many students realize their potential talent for music. It would take more than words to express our thanks to this wonderful man.

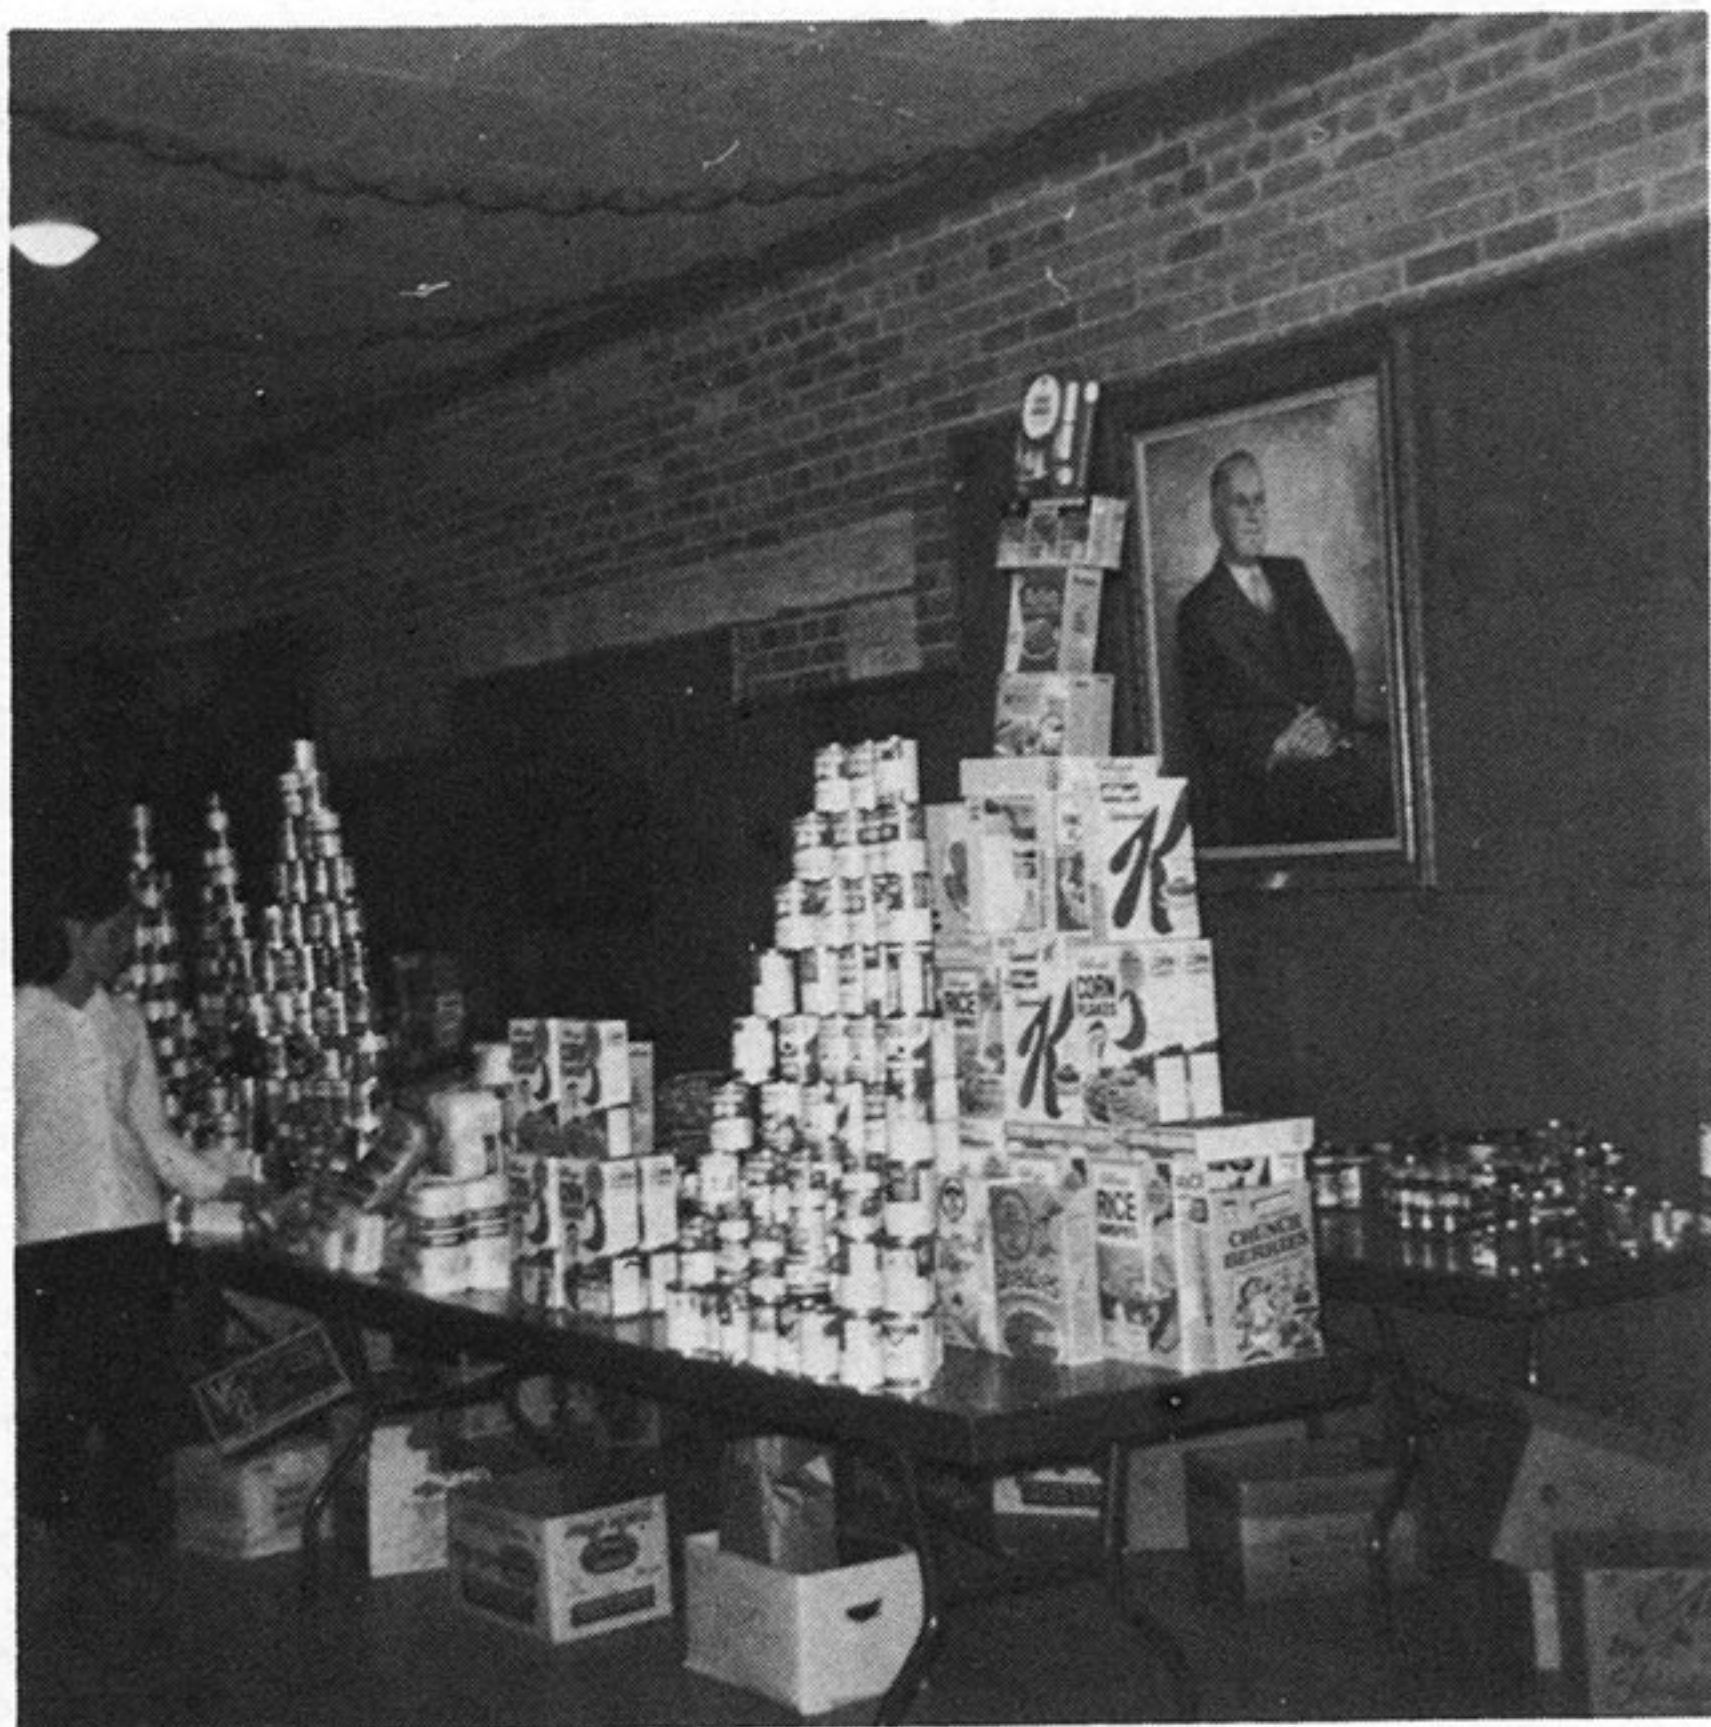

Mr. Garlin, Good Luck and our very best wishes for a happy, healthful retirement!!

ANNUAL BASKET DRIVE IS A GREAT SUCCESS

After an unusually slow start, the Christmas Basket Drive turned out to be one of the greatest successes of the year. Sponsored by the Weston Lions' Club and the Students' Council, and directed by Judy Beaumont, the basket drive was supported by all students, and enough food and toys were donated to fill twenty-five baskets. These were distributed on the last school day before the Christmas Break to needy families in the area.

THE CONNING TOWER

In the spring of 1927, the students of Weston beheld the first publication of the CONNING TOWER. Despite much research, it appears that the origin of the name "Conning Tower" has little significance; it was a rather arbitrary decision by the students involved with that first issue, based on the suggestion of an English teacher, Miss Mott. Perhaps it was inspired by Robert Service:

The junior God looked from his place
In the conning towers of heaven,
And saw the world through the span of space,
Like a giant golf-ball driven.

("The Junior God")

and the young people identified with this new and detached view of life. Their annual magazine, the CONNING TOWER, was to be the observation tower through which all the events of the school year could be viewed in entirety.

In the forty-three years that have elapsed since the original edition, there have been few major changes. Each yearbook features the familiar advertisements, essays, poetry and classroom news, though it is said that in the earlier publications, creative writing predominated, and pictures were fewer. After the second World War, photography improved greatly and the CONNING TOWER included individual pictures of the graduates, along with a group picture from every form. Unfortunately, with the improved photography came a decline in the quality and quantity of the literary work submitted.

The CONNING TOWER had always known financial difficulty. Four years after its initiation, the yearbook ceased publication in the years 1932-1936 due to the depression and students' inability to pay for the copy. Improved art work and photography promised renewed enthusiasm in the 1937-1941 editions, but again prices for both labour and materials soared during World War II, and the financial resources were so depleted that the CONNING TOWER was not revived again until 1949.

From that year onward there has been a publication every spring, some years more from tradition than true enthusiasm or desire. A yearbook reveals so much about the school; its youth, its ideas, its ambitions — it may well be the showcase of the school to those who will never see the building, nor meet those whose lives are moulded within its walls. Certainly there is room for many improvements, and improvements can only result from effort. Whether it be literary work, photography, art, salesmanship, or just some good old-fashioned encouragement, each little effort adds to the whole; energy is never lost.

THE RESULT: During the critical break-in period (which actually determines how well and how long your car will run) everything is at its optimum. Oil is properly distributed, fuel is properly atomized. The car runs better — for years.

There can actually be more difference between cars from different dealers than between cars of different makes. The reason is preconditioning.
